Nixon nears decision on gas tax, rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may be nearing a decision on whether to impose gasoline rationing, higher gasoline taxes or both.

He scheduled a meeting for today with his cabinet-level energy group. Such a move usually means that a decision is near.

Sources said the energy group is leaning heavily toward recommending rationing to Nixon. Senior administration officials have concluded that Congress would not approve a large increase in the federal tax on gasoline to discourage driving, the sources said.

However, Nixon is known to view rationing as a last resort. On Nov. 7 he said the American people would resent peacetime rationing "very, very much" and that he personally disliked it because of the power it gave to the officials who administer it.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday that no decision has been made either way.

Contingency plans are being drafted for rationing, the White House has confirmed.

Stein, reporting to newsmen on a high-level assessment of the fuel shortage's economic impact, predicted it will push the nation's economy down to near-recession levels next year.

Unemployment, now standing at 4.5 per cent, will rise to close to 6 per cent, he said. That would mean that more than a million workers would lose jobs.

Stein said Americans can expect sharply higher fuel prices. He said the government should maintain price controls on petroleum because oil companies would otherwise reap windfall profits.

He said the worst impact would come in the first six months of next year and said the output of the economy could decline from January through March.

In other developments:

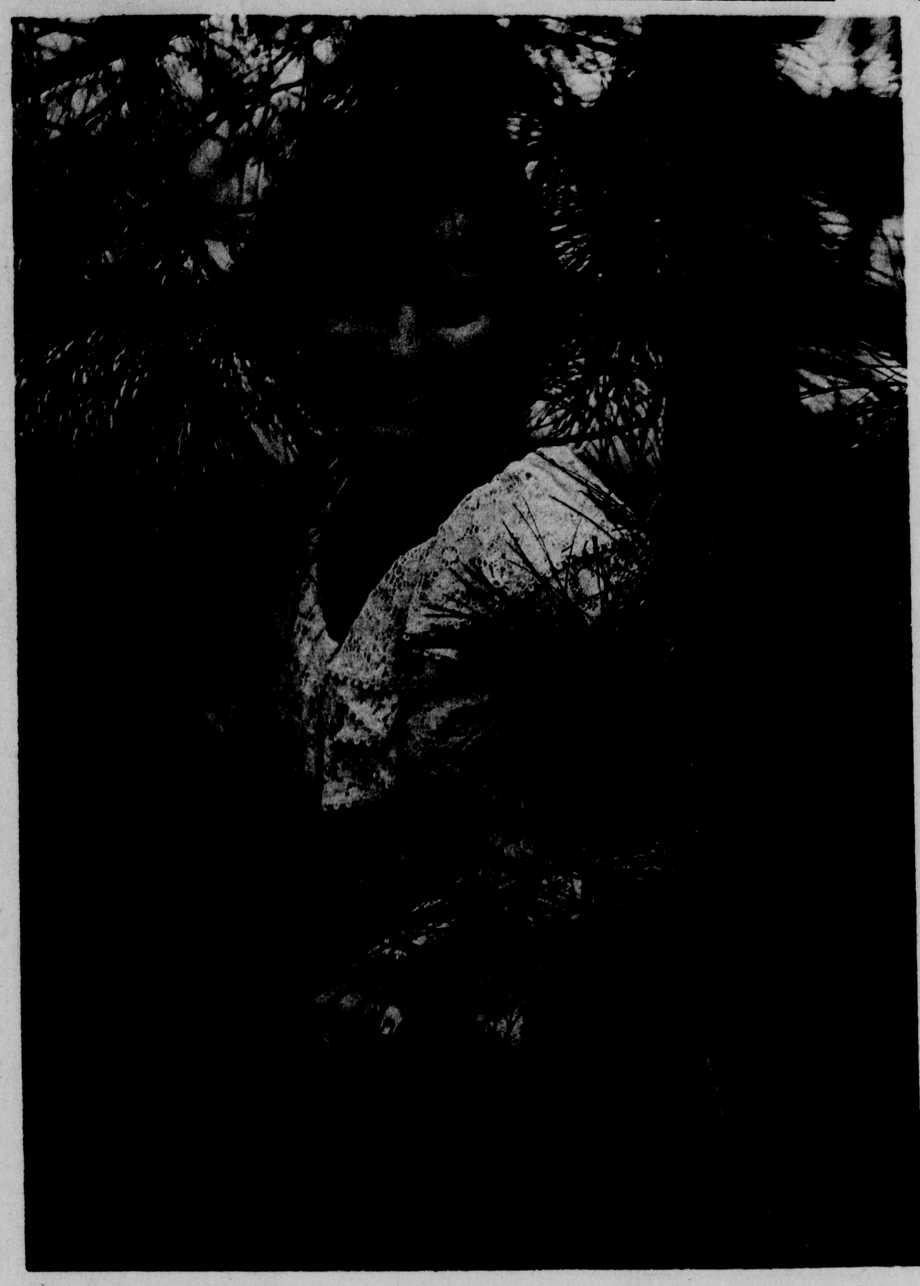
—Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., criticized continuing U.S. oil shipments to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand during the domestic shortage. The Pentagon said the amounts of oil have been reduced but the policy of providing fuel to the three nations remains unchanged.

—The Arab oil-producing countries promised to relax the energy squeeze on Britain, France, Spain and those African nations that broke relations with Israel. The Arabs have cut off all oil for the United States.

—Chrysler Corp. said it will close seven auto assembly plants for varying periods in January. Chrysler said the move was to change over to increased small-car production.

—Robert D. Timm, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the fuel shortage probably will result in some cities losing all scheduled air service.

—The House Public Works Committee approved a bill which would set a nationwide speed limit for all vehicles of 55 miles per hour.



Shumate gets 15 years

NEW MADRID — Judge William L. Ragland assessed punishment of 15 years in custody of the Department of Corrections for Ozell Shumate, 45, of New Madrid, who was found guilty of sodomy Thursday by a Circuit Court jury.

Shumate was accused of committing unnatural sex acts upon an 11- year- old New Madrid boy on March 4.

Defense attorney was allowed 30 days to file a motion for new trial and Jan. 8 was set for the motion to be heard.

Three witnesses — the victim, Deputy Sheriff Russell Cobb, who was a city police officer at the time of the crime, and Dr. Thomas H. Pinkstaff of Sikeston — were called by Pros. Atty. Hal E. Hunter Jr.

No witnesses were called by the defense.

The victim testified he and his 14- year- old brother were in a coin laundry about 7 p.m. on March 4 washing clothes. He stated Shumate told him he would pay him $2 to clean his house. The boy said he left with Shumate and walked to Shumate's house on Capitol Street.

The boy stated that while he was cleaning the bathroom commode, Shumate entered the bathroom and the offense was committed.

The boy described both oral and anal unnatural sex acts which he said Shumate committed upon him. Further testifying, he said he was at Shumate's house a long time and that Shumate "kept on doing the same thing."

According to the boy's testimony, he left Shumate's house about 2:10 a.m., and Shumate told him to come back the next day and he would pay him.

While he was walking home, the boy said a police officer saw him and stopped. He said he told the officer where he had been and what had occurred. Then he directed the officer to Shumate's house.

Cobb testified he had been looking for the boy and spotted him walking on Mott Street about 2 a.m. Cobb, who was driving a police car, said he picked up the boy and the youth told him what

Cape child killed

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A 15- month- old girl, Amy Clifton, became the year's fourth traffic fatality in Cape Girardeau following a two-car collision at 7:30 a.m. Thursday at the dangerous Bloomfield South Kingshighway intersection.

The baby's father, Ronald W. Clifton, 25, of 3109 Meadow Lark lane, was listed in serious condition and his 3- year- old son, Timothy, suffered minor injuries, Southeast Missouri Hospital officials said.

The child was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital where all three were taken by Cape County Ambulance Service.

Clifton was apparently attempting to go east across Kingshighway at 7:30 a.m. and had crossed the center line when the small car he was driving was struck in the right front fender by a north-bound car driven by Richard Nation, 34, Chaffee, who was uninjured, city police at the scene said.

Authorities said when Clifton's car was struck it was spun around and both doors came open. All three occupants were thrown clear of the car.

Three of the four fatalities that have occurred this year have been on Kingshighway and the Bloomfield intersection has been the site of numerous accidents authorities said.

A city official said, "The State Highway Department has control over all traffic control and lights on the highway.

He said, "They have been requested frequently to install a four- way intersection there, instead of

MissCo wins first round

BENTON— "There is nothing that can be done to prevent Mississippi County from operating a sanitary landfill in Scott County as long as they comply with legal requirements, so you might as well give up, Presiding Judge Les D. Lankford of Chaffee told protesting landowners and residents of the Illmo, Scott City and Commerce area appearing before the Scott County Court Thursday.

The opposition group has been protesting the proposed establishment of a Mississippi County landfill on 80 acres of Scott County land owned by Herb Pickett of rural Illmo.

The group learned in October that Mississippi County had entered into a contract with an option to buy the Pickett land on the former Albert Meinz farm.

The objecting landowners circulated petitions and reportedly obtained more than 500 signatures of persons opposed to the landfill.

One of the main objections being brought out by the group is that a watershed from this land will pollute Holden Creek which runs through adjoining land and is used to water livestock.

Several landowners have said they think their property values will be hurt if Mississippi County is permitted to operate a

Mailing dates are moved up

Postmaster Don Pasaka today joined Postmaster General E. T. Klassen in urging Sikeston residents to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the U.S. Postal Service originally recommended, so the energy shortage will not interfere with on- time deliveries.

"The urgency of the fuel energy crisis compels us to request a one- week advancement of suggested dates we gave for domestic mail and a two- week advancement for foreign mail," Pasaka said.

The new deadline for posting domestic first- class Christmas mail is Dec. 8 rather than Dec. 15, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by Dec. 3, instead of Dec. 10.

Airmail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than Dec. 15, rather

Harrington back in Sikeston jail

James (Peterboy) Harrington, 24, was returned to the Sikeston city jail Thursday night from Chicago after his efforts to block extradition from Illinois were rejected Thursday in a court hearing.

Harrington is accused of the 1971 murder of Kenneth Ellison during a dice game on Felker Street.

He is scheduled to be arraigned Tuesday before Judge Lloyd Briggs in Magistrate Court.

Harrington attempted to fight extradition to Sikeston by claiming he was not in the city or even in Scott County at the time of the shooting and that he was not the James Harrington police were seeking.

Scott County Sheriff John Dennis and a witness to the shooting went to Chicago to testify Thursday morning that Harrington was the man sought.

Police today said they have tightened security measures to prevent unauthorized people from getting near Harrington.

Ellison, 22 years old at the time of his death, was shot once in the chest with a .22- caliber pistol while participating in a dice game early on Sept. 19, 1971.

Witnesses to the shooting said Ellison and a companion left the Community Club in Sunset Addition and joined the dice game.

The assalant walked up to the game, drew a gun and ordered everyone to stand up. Ellison hesitated then was shot in the chest as he turned around.

The assailant then walked away from the game and no one gave chase.

Police said Ellison was armed with a small- caliber

Car topples power pole

The above car, driven by Bruce Alan Glastetter of Benton Route One, partially blocked North Kingshighway late Thursday afternoon after it was struck by a car attempting to cross Kingshighway on Wakefield. The Glastetter car then hit a power pole and knocked it down. Glastetter and three children in the Newton car were treated for bruises at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The Glastetter car was knocked into a power pole on the southwest corner of the intersection, knocking it down.

Glastetter was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for multiple bruises. Mrs. Newton's children, Diana, 10, Lori, 8, and David, 4, were treated for bruises.

Mrs. Newton was arrested for careless and imprudent driving.

REFORM; YES!
DESTRUCTION; NO!

(No. 3 in series, The Presidency and the Press)

A vigorous, alert, aggressive, crusading press is the Republic's best guarantee for lasting freedom. As to that truism (thank Heavens!) there is little disagreement.

Today, our nation is involved in a great debate concerning the abuse of Presidential power. This is a legitimate discussion, one of continuing importance in a country which seeks to preserve the principle that political, economic and moral power be vested in the people. And for the conduct of that debate, a free press is essential.

As with all matters, however, there are two sides to the coin. Even as there are dangers inherent in political power, there are dangers that the vast power of the press itself, if not handled with restraint, may also be subverted.

There is good reason to believe that some of those involved in the attack against Mr. Nixon ("chivied and harrassed as no President before him had ever been," according to liberal writer Theodore White) have exceeded the bounds of legitimate debate, and have extended their assault to include not simply the President — the man — but the very office of the Presidency itself; the institution.

If one recent event, a college student demonstration demanded impeachment. An inquiring reporter asked the youth who they proposed to fill the vacancy. It was learned that they not only didn't know; they didn't care. Their "contribution" to the debate was not constructive, but simply destructive.

Mrs. Marie Gifford recently editorialized on radio stations KEEL and KMBQ, Shreveport, Louisiana: "Over the past ten years we have seen a gradually accelerated effort to kill the Presidency. I submit that this is a dangerous game to play ... Today it has become great sport to belittle the President. Whether or not those who engage in this sport realize what they are doing, I do not know. But they are killing the Presidency as surely as a bullet killed John Kennedy.

"The stakes are too great for power-hungry politicians, and yes, sorrowfully, power-hungry newsmen, to kill the Presidency."

Power in all branches of the government bureaucracy in Washington has indeed reached alarming proportions. There has been, and continues to be, abuses of that power. Our free press can amke a major contribution toward the reduction of excessive government power.

Reform? Definitely! But destruction? No!

PRESIDENT CAN SET AN EXAMPLE

President Nixon, in his drive to conserve energy, can set an example for the nation.

He can travel by car at 50 miles per hour, instead of helicopter or plane, close down Camp David, his Miami home and his California estate, stay in the White House, cut temperatures to 68 degrees, use fewer lights.

LET OTHERS SAVE FUEL

Our President found the White House in Washington too uncomfortable last weekend and jetted down to Key Biscayne to get away from Watergate and the overwhelming desires of his people that he resign. The news reporter gave the amount of fuel his jet and those which have to accompany him, would use on the trip, but we forget how many thousand gallons it was. And then it was added, the foregoing does not include the plane which carries his private automobile. Our example setting President did have the jets reduce their speed 10 or 15 miles per hour to save fuel. It was not mentioned whether he turned down the thermostats at the Washington White House, turned off any of its lights, nor whether he would need more lights and probably extra air conditioning at Key Biscayne. Believe he wants all of us to do without, but can't stay away Key Biscayne, San Clemente and Camp David.

According to confidential reports we are getting, the Arabs and Israelis aren't about to pound their swords into plowshares, despite an apparent cessation of hostilities. There's too much at stake, on both sides. The Mideast will remain a powder keg, for a long time to come.

That means problems for the U. S., not to mention Europe and Japan. The Arabs have already cut off all oil to this country. This action is less significant for its short range effects -- though these shouldn't be minimized -- than for its long range implications.

The U. S., like the rest of the world, is already in an energy bind. Fuel oil and gasoline shortages will be aggravated further by any prolonged lack of access to arab oil, even though we rely on it for only a small fraction of our needs. It involves the future of our relations with Europe and Japan -- in trade, monetary matters, political alliances, defense.

Let's face it, Arab oil is a powerful weapon -- not because we are so heavily dependent on it, but because Europe and Japan are. It is true that giant U. S. oil companies like Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf, Standard Oil could be badly hurt by developments in the Mideast. But the huge European demand for Arab oil has pitched many of our Western allies into the Arab camp at a time when American support for Israel has been intensified.

Arab oil is driving a wedge between the U. S. and Western Europe. It's likely to widen more, war or no war in the Middle East. Europe feels threatened by shifting trade patterns as a result of fluctuations in currency that have given the U. S. a much improved position to compete internationally. This has fostered a growing trend toward protectionism, despite all talk about the need for freer trade among nations. The split between Europe and the U. S. over the Arab- Israeli dispute will accelerate this trend, making cooperation on trade and monetary matters much more difficult.

Here's the nub of the problem. The Arabs are making no subtle noises that they won't accept paper money much longer. The Europeans are dependent on Arab oil. So how much longer are Europeans going to depend on paper money, backed by nothing more substantial than dollars -- or SDR's? How much longer are Europeans going to put up with our foot-dragging in monetary reform? Not much longer, you may be sure.

AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION

A couple of years ago, the bandwagon had a lot of riders supporting gun control legislation. In the controversy over the subject, those citizens who happened to own or believe in the right of ownership of firearms were looked upon as something out of a Neanderthal past. For the time being, the controversy has tapered off, and the public is even beginning to learn more about the kind of people who have upheld gun ownership. The latter group includes sportsmen, conservationists and simply independent - minded people who see ownership of a firearm as representative of individual responsibility under self-government.

No organization has done more to present the vast body of gun owning citizens in the proper light than the National Rifle Association. An example of its work was evident during the 1970 Annual Meeting of the NRA. More than 10,000 gun fanciers toured the exhibits of antique and modern firearms and related accessories at the organization's 99th Annual Meeting. Almost every state in the Union, several Canadian provinces and a number of foreign countries were represented at the gathering. Awards were presented to members of the Association for outstanding efforts in behalf of local NRA clubs. These clubs, established across the country, carry on activities directed toward firearm training, safety and marksmanship.

During one session at the NRA meeting, an official of the Fish and Wildlife, Parks and Marine Resources of the U. S. Department of the Interior urged the NRA and its members to continue their conservation work and assist in the development of new programs and techniques to better man's environment. Other high- level government officials attending the meeting presented their views on law enforcement,crime and related matters. As was obvious to anyone attending the NRA meeting, this organization of more than a million lawabiding, gun owning citizens is one of the most constructive influences in the country on the side of law, order and citizen responsibility. It is a typically American institution.

U. S. SPENDING LID URGED TO STOP RUNAWAY BUDGET

Runaway federal spending, which has risen 25 per cent since 1970, has resulted from the lack of "adequate spending controls" by the government, according to the National Association of Manufacturers.

In testimony before a Senate subcommittee, NAM spokesman A. L. Bolton, Jr., president of Bolton- Emerson, Inc., Lawrence, Mass., recommended an all-inclusive expenditure ceiling, creation of a joint committee of the budget which would "force" a meaningful consolidation of the expenditure review function, periodic review of federal programs with a three-year limit on authorizations, and a Federal Economy Act that would allow the President to name low- priority programs to be eliminated automatically unless he was specifically overruled by Congress within a certain period.

Mr. Bolton said that the apparent transfer of power over federal finances to the executive branch is "less a usurpation of power than an uneven development of the procedures, knowledge, and resources for program evaluation, long range planning, and total budget review."

The NAM spokesman said that the expenditure ceiling must apply both to Congress and the Executive Branch and encompass all budget expenditures, including the so-called "uncontrollable" funds that Congress has approved in prior years.

GETT OFF HEARNES' BACK

Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes appears to have acted properly by turning over his papers and records to the University of Missouri historical collection, as his predecessors have done.

A 1965 public records law says official state records may not be disposed of without permission of the State Records Commission. By making the university a depository of his papers, Hearnes has not disposed of anything. Rather, he has preserved documents and memorabilia for the benefit of the public and for scholars.

It is only natural that a Governor's papers should be a mix of personal correspondence and matters of official business. The tradition that a Governor's papers should be kept secret during his lifetime is understandable — it can spare a lot of people embarrassment.

Hearnes has been willing to turn over financial records to the state auditor's office, and has already done so to a certain extent. Hearnes says he will give State Auditor John Ashcroft any specific records Ashcroft requests but he will not let the auditor root through his entire collection. Hearnes wants to retain the confidentiality of his correspondence, which he is entitled to do.

There should be ample opportunity for the state auditor to get any financial records he needs from disbursing offices. Ashcroft can ask the State Comptroller and State Treasurer for assistance if he needs it.

TYING DOWN THE SAFETY VALVE

Sudden, explosive increases in wholesale prices sometime ago demonstrated one of the greatest dangers of price and wage control which many have warned against from the beginning. They are merely a shield behind which the basic force of inflation -- excessive governmental deficit spending -- continues to build up. Politicians feel safe in advocating bigger and better vote- getting handouts, and taxpayers tend to become less vigilant and to believe the fatuous talk about inflation having been brought under "control." Then suddenly, under the pressure of new spending records, we have a dollar crisis, and living costs again take off for the stratosphere. Each time wage and price controls are applied, it is like tying down a safety valve on steam boiler while continuing to stoke the furnace.

The present determined efforts of the Administration to curb government spending have been called a "... key to success in stemming inflation." It is up to the taxpayers and to all citizens to recognize this fundamental truth and to judge the performance of their elected representatives in Congress, state legislatures and elsewhere accordingly.

THE ENDURING HOSTILITY OF THE KREMLIN

More often these days it is happening that men identified by philosophy and association with the left wing during their active careers, change and write very differently when their professional careers are over. The Dean Acheson who wrote from retirement about his experiences in foreign policy sounded very different from the Dean Acheson who, as President Truman's Secretary of State, virtually invited the communists to conquer South Korea. Men such as Allen Drury and Arthur Krock who once wrote for the New York Times, with no sign of disagreement or embarrassment, now publish exposes in novels or memoirs, featuring the subservience of their former colleagues to the pro- Red line.

Now another important figure has joined this interesting and significant group. He is Charles E. Bohlen, adviser on Soviet affairs to five Presidents and long- time U. S. ambassador to Moscow. Bohlen was widely condemned as "soft on communism" in 1953. At the time there was good reason to believe that he was, but now, in retirement, writing as a "witness to history, 1929-1969" Bohlen tells us that there is no real mellowing in Russia and the "Soviet Union remains virtually unchanged" since Stalin's death.

Bohlen declares: "The ideological element of Soviet policy is of vital importance. It means that there can be no harmonious relations with Moscow..There is no sign of evolution of the Soviet state to make it more reasonable in dealing with other nations." He counsels us to "continue along the lines of the policy that has been generally followed since World War II." HLH

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Maritime Head Collected Nixon Cash From Shippers

WASHINGTON -- Confidential Senate Watergate documents show that salty-tongued Federal Maritime Chairwoman Helen Bentley collected at least $20,000 in donations for the Nixon campaign from the shipping industry she is supposed to regulate.

The documents describe Mrs. Bentley's dealings with the veteran shipper, Captain Leo Berger, a partner in Avon steamships of Lake Success, Long Island. Both were interviewed by committee investigators in recent weeks.

A summary of Ms. Bentley's brief interview with committee sleuth William Mayton reports: "He asked her a few times in many different ways if she ever solicited money for the 1972 campaign and she always responded negatively."

When Berger was cross-examined, however, he confessed that he and his partner, Peter Constas, gave "$20,000 in cash to Ms. Bentley which she gave to Stans." Former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans was President Nixon's chief fund raiser and is now under criminal indictment in the campaign contributions case of financier Robert Vesco.

The summary quotes Ms. Bentley as telling the Senate Watergate staff that "the Avon Shipping Company had no business before her" when she passed the campaign hat. "They gave her the money because they knew that she was a Republican," and they wanted the money, according to the summary of her testimony, "to go to the GOP."

The truth is that Avon, like most shipping companies, did have business before the Federal Maritime Commission. Such firms must get certification from the commission, under Ms. Bentley, that they have the financial means to pay for cleaning up any oil spills.

We reached Ms. Bentley, who explained yeastily that she had told the committee staff about the certification question herself and could not understand why it was left out of the summary of her interview.

At Avon, Captain Berger defended the chairwoman, saying there had been no solicitation. His campaign contribution, he said, "was voluntary." Then he added brusquely: "I said everything I'm going to say before the committee. Goodnight."

Despite the gruff sea captain's modesty about his contributions, our investigation backs up the Watergate committee's finding. The records of secret cash contributions to the Nixon campaign show a "Captain Leo Berger" and "Peter Constas," both listed at Avon's Lake Success address, each gave $10,000.

FOOTNOTE: In September 1970, we reported how Ms. Bentley was asked by then Vice President Spiro Agnew to pass the hat in shipping circles for an Agnew crony running for governor of Maryland. Dutifully, she contacted about 10 "top echelon shipping executives," she admitted.

A State Department telegram, intended for official eyes only, reveals how the United States has been aiding the nation that has cut off our oil. The United States has established a military logistical support system for Saudi Arabia. Because the Saudi army hasn't developed "the required degree of expertise" to manage the system, states the telegram, "limited US (government's) assistance will be required" ...Intelligence reports quote Saudi Arabian leaders as saying one reason for the oil boycott was to break what they believed to be the Zionist hold on the U. S. press and bring the Arab story forcibly to the attention of the American public.

Oil- Gas Gap Hysteria: Insiders See No Nationwide Energy Crunch Unemployment Depression

WASHINGTON-- There's a confidential, holocaustic energy report dated Nov. 8 in Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's desk. And in his closet is an oversized Icelandic sweater. The ex- Marine, who is President Nixon's globe-trotting braintruster, puts more faith in the sweater than in the document.

The Treasury study is characteristic of the hysteria now sweeping the nation terrorized by reports of gas gaps, oil shortages and petroleum products scarcities. So help me, one bright governmental chap said the other day there'll be so much unemployment, there'll be riots, rebellion and mobilized troops in the streets because of looming crunches and joblessness.

The confidential staff report to Shultz sees a possible 7 to 9 million unemployed by 1975. Its author predicts the Arab oil boycott will run well over a year. Another federal official opines three years. The memorandum sees no relief-- not enough available coal, nor land on which to pile it, nor money sufficiently economical to reconvert boilers to coal, nor even stokers, no longer produced in the U. S.

So it goes everywhere-- on paper. Hysteria has bred hoarding. Fuel black marketeers have shown up in and around Kansas City, Mo., it is reported. Responsible executives of heavy industries have been forced to warn that, for example, some 60,000 jobs will be lost in the steel industry if it is held down to the fuel level of 1972. The heavy construction contractors are complaining of lack of propane gas and diesel fuel.

But a hard- nosed count I've made with the aid of veteran government specialists indicates that there are fewer than 25,000 now jobless or temporarily laid off across the U. S. for lack of fuel.

There is no solid information on the oil and gas gas- induced unemployment. There is one solid figure-- some 86 million people are working.

There are airline layoffs. Employment in Wichita, Kans., site of production of private planes (Cessna, Lear, Boeing, et al.) is sloughing off. Construction contractors in Ohio, California, Kansas, Texas, Arizona, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri and Kentucky have laid off several thousand men for lack of diesel fuel and propane gas.

But most of these are temporary. It is natural that each industry should begin protecting itself-- the squeaky-wheel- gets- the grease sort of thing.

But there is energy-producing fuel. The U. S. exports some 50 million tons of coal a year. And if the environmentalists would develop some new momentary passion, all sorts of gas and "dirty"oil and coal reserves could be tapped. We may get a little sooty but what of it, actually, until the supplies roll in from nuclear plants and Alaska-- yes, and the Middle East.

For example, in New York Cith the other evening I interviewed Bertram Schwartz, Consolidated Edison's executive vice president for fuel supplies. Also, his counterpart Eugene Luntey of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co. They told me there are sufficient natural gas reserves on hand to see the megalopolis and its New York suburbs, all with a total of over 10 million people, right through next year. Schwartz says there would be no blackouts, no brownouts, no power shortages for transportation if the city officials would let "Con- Ed" burn coal.

But the big city's avant-garde environmentalist- minded elite say no-- and won't even permit the utility to buy and store coal.

Luntey told me his company is getting gas from Algeria. Sounds like good news.

There are vast supplies of fuel in this nation. But it's ill-distributed. Shultz, reaching for his Icelandic sweater, says the answer is in priorities-- industry first so jobs can be saved, transportation, residential, commercial users and electric utilities will have to be supplied.

But, says Shultz, we are entering a new era of life styles. It's a matter of cutting down on non- essentials. It will be rough on the Sunday driver and the ski innkeeper. But not on the auto and steel workers. An increased industrial workers' productivity would help, indeed.

But Shultz and Presidential domestic adviser Mel Laird, who sports a tan buttoned sweater around the White House, and others in the brain trust don't envision millions of new jobless. Displacement, yes. Economic disaster, no.

There will be a traditional postwar slump and some resultant unemployment. No one wants it. But who wants war? At worst, say insiders, it will be the Year of the Sweater.

3 to stand trial on burglary charges

CHARLESTON — Following a preliminary hearing Thursday before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr., Ronnie Lane and Larry Johnson of East Prairie were bound over to Circuit Court on felony charges of burglary and stealing stemming from a Nov. 1 break- in at the Melvin Guinn home near East Prairie.

A portable color television set, stereo combination set and five speakers were stolen during the breakin.

Testifying during the preliminary were Melvin Guinn, Kenny Williford, Deputy Sheriffs Robert Smith and Jack Ivie and Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

The break- in was discovered about 5:30 p.m. Nov. 1, according to Guinn, who said he returned home from work to find a rear door of the mobile home had been forced open. He notified the highway patrol which apparently contacted Sheriff Simmons who sent Deputy Smith to investigate.

Guinn said he was notified the following morning by Simmons that the stolen articles had been brought to his office.

Kenny Williford of East Prairie testified he was riding around and drinking with Lane and Johnson on the day in question and that about 5:30 p.m. Lane asked to borrow his car. He said he was taken to the poolroom in East Prairie where he remained until picked up by the two men later.

Williford said he drove the men to the mobile home of Johnson's brother, Wayne Johnson, in East Prairie, where Lane opened the trunk of the car and he saw a television set and some other things.

"Ronnie (Lane) said the things came from the Guinn trailer and I got scared and told them to take the stuff out of my car because I didn't want to get involved in anything," Williford said.

Deputy Ivie said he questioned Williford the following morning "on a hunch," since he had been told by an unidentified source that Williford's car had been seen at a trailer home. Ivie said he went to the Wayne Johnson home, talked with Mrs. Johnson and recovered two speakers which he took to the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Simmons said the other stolen articles were brought to his office the following morning by two men, whose names he did not reveal.

Lane and Johnson are scheduled to appear in Circuit Court Dec. 11. Johnson is free on $10,000 bond and Lane remains in custody.

Anthony Peterson of Charleston waived preliminary hearing on felony charges of burglary and stealing and was bound over to Circuit Court for a Dec. 11 appearance. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Carl Edward Cassell and Gary Donald Easton of Charleston, who were arrested along with Peterson for the break- in at Cecil's Tobacco Store on Sept. 26, will appear for a preliminary hearing before Judge Brown on Dec. 13. They were released on their own recognizance.

A preliminary hearing for Bruce Edward Jinkerson of Zalma, charged with possession of a controlled substance (LSD), was scheduled for Dec. 13. Jinkerson, arrested Nov. 12 in Charleston, is free on $1,000 bond.

Judge Brown issued commitment orders for Gary Scott after Scott failed to meet the conditions of probation given March 31 on a non- support charge.

Trial for Roger D. Scott of East Prairie, charged with driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license was revoked, was scheduled on Dec. 20. Scott is free on $225 bond.

Violation of the wildlife code brought $66 fines and 10- day suspended jail sentences to Gary Brown, Kenneth Wayne Farrell and Larry McCutchen of East Prairie. The same charge against Jean Iberg was continued to Dec. 6.

Martin W. George Jr. of Bertrand was fined $173.20 on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The same charge against Daniel Wells Moit of Bertrand and Kathyrn Frances Alcorn of Sikeston was continued to Dec. 6. A driving while intoxicated charge against Henry Lewis Swope of Charleston was continued to Dec. 13.

Middemeanor cases and fines included: Charles Rondal Thurman of East Prairie, defective brakes, $21; Larry Eugene Hoppingarner of Charleston, expired operator's license, $21; Frankie Gray Brewer of East Prairie, speeding, $35; billy Wade Brewer of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31; and Virnon Eugene Kemp of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31.

In civic suits, Wilbur L. Davis was awarded judgment of $51 and costs in an account suit brought against Theodore Lyons of Charleston. W. C. Bryant received a total judgment of $266.30 plus costs in a note suit against Pearlie Branigan Kent.

Cases continued to Dec. 6 included Charles Hamilton of Charleston, careless and imprudent driving; Charles Phillip Allred of East Prairie, no Missouri PSC license and no copy of the Missouri special fuel users license on truck; Maxine Hale Stabbs, common assault; Michael Anderson Rytter of Charleston, out- of- state vehicle license while a Missouri resident; and Roy Vernon Dean of East Prairie, possession of alcoholic beverage (beer) while a minor.

A charge of failure to cause her children to attend the R-2 Elementary schools against Katherine Willis was continued to Dec. 13. Also continued to Dec. 13 was a charge of leaving the scene of an accident against James Raymond Wheatley.

than Dec. 21. To Alaska and Hawaii, mail by Dec. 13, rather than Dec. 20.

"The seriousness of the fuel shortage to the postal service is underlined," Pasaka said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 350 million gallons of fuel to travel 2.25 billion miles delivering the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons."

"Public cooperation on meeting these new, advance mail early dates is needed to help us complete all Christmas deliveries," Pasaka emphasized.

Davis given 6 months for accepting stolen goods

BENTON — Jerry Lynn Davis of Illmo was sentenced to six months in the county jail by Judge Marshall Craig Thursday in Circuit Court. Davis was charged with receiving stolen property taken in a June 27 burglary of the Quickie Market in Illmo.

According to Pros. Atty. Jim Moore, Davis had previously been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with the robbery of Quickie Market but he repeatedly claimed he was innocent and voluntarily took a lie detector test.

The examiner made his report to Moore, stating that, in his opinion, Davis did not break into and enter the store but thought the test indicated he was involved in some manner.

Moore said Davis pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property.

Judge Craig ordered the Department of Probation and Parole to investigate Davis to determine if he should be placed on probation and report the findings on Dec. 13.

the caution light, but they said their surveys have indicated the conditions now are not such that one is warranted."

Bloomfield was realigned in late 1971 to make access to Kingshighway less dangerous and a flashing warning signal was hung over the middle of the intersection.

City Manager W. G. Lawley said the number of accidents has decreased and when the realignment work was done lines had been put in to connect a four-way signal for some time in the future, but he added the city has no control over the proposal.

had happened. He stated the boy showed him Shumate's house on Capitol Street. Cobb said he then contacted a sheriff's deputy and they arrested Shumate at his house.

Testimony from Dr. Pinkstaff, who examined the boy on March 5, was limited when Judge Ragland sustained an objection raised by defense counsel. The attorney stated that the doctor was not present and was unable to testify of his own knowledge concerning a throat culture examination made by a laboratory technician.

Dr. Pinkstaff stated he had found minimal physical signs of abrasions about the victim's mouth.

In his closing statement to the jury, the defense counsel stated that no corroborating evidence had been presented by the State to substantiate the accusations by the youth.

In rebuttal, Hunter argued that the defense had presented no contradictory evidence and that the jury should make a decision based on testimony from the witnesses.

The jury deliberated about 10 minutes before returning the verdict.

The group hired an attorney to check possible legal action that could be taken to prevent Mississippi County from locating in Scott County, but say they need more help.

Lindsay Hurley, first district judge of the Mississippi County Court who was present at the meeting, told the landowners that Mississippi County has so much money tied up in the landfill it can't afford to back out.

Hurley said that two years ago Mississippi County and Scott County made an agreement to jointly operate a landfill but, after James Patrick of St. Louis began his private practice, Mississippi County began looking for a place of its own.

"Patrick talked to us about joining him, but we weren't interested," Hurley said.

Second District Judge Louie Hirschowitz said he doesn't want Mississippi and Scott counties to operate a landfill together because he feels like they would not be able to get along.

Judge Lankford told the group he is not satisfied with the landfill the Scott County Court has purchased. "If I had it to do over, I would look for rolling land," he said.

Pros. Atty. Jim Moore has asked Atty. Gen. John Danforth for an opinion on whether a third class county can own land and operate a landfill in an adjoining county, and if a third class county can exclude an adjoining county from owning and operating a landfill through a county plan or through zoning.

The opposition group has told the County Court it thinks Mississippi county should stay in its own county but the Mississippi County Court claims its water table is so high that there is no suitable location for a landfill within the county.

The protest group vowed to continue the fight to prevent its establishment.

Indians-Pirates collide

BERNIE-- Puxico and Parma square off in what may be a preview of the class A regional finals next February as the two powers collide for the championship of the Bernie Invitational tournament tonight at 8:30.

Coach Pete Townsend's top seeded Indians battled past a rugged Gideon Bulldog quintet, 62- 50 and Parma edged out their New Madrid county neighbors-- Risco Tigers-- 66- 62 to move into the title bout.

Balance was the key to the Puxico victory, as five players scored in double figures for the pre- tourney favorites.

The Indians took a 14- 12 lead in the first quarter and held off the big rugged Bulldogs with a full court pressure defense and finally pulled away in the fourth period with a 22- 13 advantage.

Will Smith and Mike Reed scored 13 points each in pacing the PHS offense, which included 10 point totals by Red Smith, Jim Davis and Jerry Caldwell. Gideon was led by Curtis Coleman's 18 points. Gary Pyland added 14 and Joe Murphy 12 to round out the GHS double figure scoring.

Parma coach Mark Rascher almost turned sure victory into a defeat Thursday night when he unloaded his bench with about a minute and a half left in the game, holding a 13 point lead, and had to hustle his starters back into the contest as the pressure Risco defense provided the capacity crowd with some last second excitement.

Risco closed within four points and has a couple of chances to get even closer, but turned the ball over themselves.

Parma opened up an 18- 14 lead in the first and added five points to that lead through the next two quarters before Risco finally ran the Pirates down and began to chip away at their 15 point lead build early in the final quarter.

Steve Gibson, the Pirates only underclassmen among the starters, wheeled and dealed for 22 points and 15 rebounds to pace Parma's march into the title bout. Rufus Barnes scored 18 and Rolly Perkins, and J. W. Gaines added 10 each for PHS.

Risco was paced by Andy Smelser with 19. Steve Landers had 18 and Dennis Patterson 14.

The Golden Tigers and Gideon square off in the consolation game at 7 p.m. tonight.

Mac begins eighth season

Friday night's tipoff at 8 p.m., initiates the eighth season for Sikeston high school's head basketball coach, N. P. McDaniel. In his seven years as the SHS leader, coach Mac has guided his roundball team to 89 wins in 145 starts and three regional championships, while coaching three all- state basketball players. Monday morning quarterbacks (if they have those in basketball), have criticized the coach for not getting "results," yet knowledgeable sports men in southeast Missouri have long recognized the friendly man with the white crew cut as one of the top coaches around. Few schools have equalled Sikeston's three regional wins and none have played a schedule near equal that which confronts the Bulldogs year after year.

The Blytheville Chickasaws tip off the upcoming list of fine teams opposing the Bulldogs. Compiling a record of 31-2 and finishing second in Arkansas's state 3-A playoffs, the Chicks were indeed a rugged opponent for any team last season, and they promise to continue that tradition in the campaign upcoming. Missing from last season's team is a 6- foot- 7 All- American, but the Chicks still feature good size across the front line. Because 6- foot- 4 Roger Tillman will miss the contest with a slight ankle injury, the home team will have just one man over six feet tall, playing against a team that has players 6- foot- 4, 6- foot- 2, 6- foot- 2, 6- foot- 1 and 5- foot- 10 in height. So, despite an opening 60-53 defeat at the hands of Manila, Arkansas, Blytheville will enjoy a big advantage of height their game at SHS's mini- dome.

The Bulldogs will counter height with speed, quickness, a hopefully good defense, and four of the district's finest shooters. Statements like the former one will put a great pressure on Sikeston's shooters, but three of them proved themselves last year. Sikeston's starting lineup will look like this:

ROY BOWMAN will handle one forward slot. With the absence of Tillman, Roy will have to lead the Sikeston assault on the boards, despite standing only 6- foot- 1. The senior is an outstanding defensive player -- best on the team -- above average outside shot (he hit 45 per cent last season), and an all- around fine athlete, as shown by his selection to the All- Conference football team.

The other forward spot should be held by RONALD MARKS. This is the third year of starting him. Probably the best offensive player on the team, Marks is the leading returning scorer from last year's regional champs with a 13.4 average. The slim six- footer is an outstanding leaper, but actually not bulky enough to mix it up on the boards. Ron will probably control the floor game for SHS, as he has in the past.

MARK COUCH is one of the districts finest outside shots. The 5- foot- 11 senior hit 81 percent of his free throws last year and shot 51 percent from the floor, but averaged less than eight points per game because of a reluctance to shoot. Hopefully he will have gained maturity and confidence his shot, since his offense will be critical if Sikeston is to stay in games with the taller teams.

VANGILEE WEST is the fourth assured starter. Grade problems kept this impressively quick 5- foot- 9 junior out of action last year, but in practices he has been a pleasant surprise.

The fifth spot is up for grabs going into the game. Several players have a good shot at it. The biggest, 6- foot- 3 Howard Tate, is lacking on experience and consistency of effort, but possesses the talent and the ability to do the job. 6- foot- 1 Russ Wissman probably has the inside track on the spot right now. The left- handed junior is a better shot than Tate, but weaker on defense and not quite as quick.

Sikeston's sixth man at guard will be 5- foot- 11 senior Donnie Taylor. He is just an adequate offensive ballplayer, but very good on defense. He will be joined as a top reserve by a newcomer to the team, 6- foot junior James Bryant.

It is the first time the two schools have met on the court, although they have fought it out on the gridiron. The Tartan floor of the SHS fieldhouse should be the scene of a contest between size and strength against quickness and finess. The fans should enjoy it.

Braves lose

ORAN — The host OHS Eagles upset the Scott Central Braves 68-65 and the Matthews Pirates raced past the Delta Bobcats 70-53 here Thursday night in the semifinals of the OHS invitational tournament.

In the opening game of the night the Oran Eagles advanced to the semi-finals Friday night of the losers bracker by downing the Braves. It was the second loss for SCCHS in the tournament marking the second time the Braves were favored and lost.

The Braves started fast against the Eagles. Coach Joe Scott had a couple of boys out with injuries and his outlook at the beginning of the game was very bleek. Scott Central led after the first period, 14-11, and looked as though they were going to run away with the game.

Oran, with Steve Atchison working hard both offensively and defensively brought the Eagles from the three point deficit into a 33-29 halftime lead.

The third period belonged to the Eagles as Oran started beating the Braves down court for the easy layup. The Braves looked tired and the Eagles took advantage of the defensive lapse.

Scott Central put on a press in the last period in an effort saved the game but Oran handled the ball very well and time ran out before the Braves could catch up.

It was the first win for the Eagles this season after three losses. "It was good to get that first win", said a happy Joe Scott, Oran coach.

In the second game of the night the Pirates of Matthew sputtered through the first period as the team was obvious nervous and rusty from a week layoff but Ricky Parker found the range in the second period and the rest of the Pirates began to find the hoop and an outmanned Delta Bobcat five was done for the night.

Matthews was very cold in the opening minutes of the first period as Delta jumped out to a six point advantage but after Parker began to hit the lead quickly slimmed down. By the time the second quarter had come to a close the Pirates enjoyed a comfortable 34-25 lead.

Carson Kelly had an outstanding night for the Delta Bobcats as the flashy senior pumped in 22 points to keep the Bobcats respectable.

Ricky Parker ended the game with 16 points, Jimmy Harden 17, and Armond Porter 15.

Friday nights action sees Oran playing the Bell City Cubs in the loser's bracket at 7:00 and Kelly taking on East Prairie in the winners circle at 8:30. Scoring:

It could be an All-Chicago World Series in the fall if the Cubs and White Sox continue as they did in April and May. Of course, they will have to win their league playoffs, provided they take the divisional titles.

Ann Landers

Fake back injuries have caused many drivers to lose insurance

Dear Ann Landers: When I first started to read your column I was sure you made up those letters. I couldn't believe people did those things. A straight reporting job out of Wellfleet, Mass., which I read today has convinced me that truth is indeed stranger than fiction.

It seems a socialite movie star was married in Cape Cod to the granddaughter of a famous dress designer. She was barefooted. He wore 15- year-old white buckskin shoes. His collie, Murray, was the best man. The couple announced before the wedding that they are expecting a baby.

What's going on? Or am I crazy?--- Mystified In Massachusetts

Dear Mys: More people are abandoning tradition and doing their own thing.

One of the duties of the best man is to hand the bride's wedding ring to the groom. I wonder how Murray managed it. It appears that a dog is not only man's best friend, but on occasion can be friend's best man.

Dear Ann Landers: I picked my wife's brother up last night to drive him to a lodge meeting. We've been buddies since we played on the high school basketball team together. When he noticed a big dent in the rear of my car he asked what happened. I told him some creep hit me from behind and I haven't found time to take the car into the shop. His next question was, "Are you going to sue the guy for a back injury?"

I told him I had my seatbelt on and luckily I wasn't hurt. He gave me a look of disgust and muttered, "You're an idiot. With a smashed rear end like that you could claim a back injury and collect plenty. Nobody can prove your back wasn't hurt if you say you've got terrible pain."

I have no intention of following his advice because I don't believe in those rinky-dinks but I'd like to know if what he says is true. Wouldn't an injury show up on an X-ray? How about it?-- Straight And Narrow

Dear S & N: Torn ligaments and pulled muscles don't show up on X- rays, but even so, it's not easy to fool the insurance company's examining physicians. They know every trick in the book, having witnessed them all a few hundred times. An astute doctor can tell a great deal by the way a person walks, stands, sits in a chair and gets up from a chair. Once the "patient" is tagged as a claim- faker he has a very difficult time getting any more coverage and that's a bad spot to be in.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in my middle twenties, and live several hundred miles away from my family. I am not married and am very pregnant. I won't explain here why it isn't feasible for my beloved to marry me at this time but we hope to make it legal next year.

My question is this: My mother plans to visit me in three weeks. I will be in my eighth month. Would it be kinder to write and tell her before she arrives (I'm sure it will be very upsetting), or should I wait and let her see for herself?--- Happy But Not Content

Dear H. But Not C.: By all means prepare your mother in advance--- by letter. It will be easier for her to READ the news than to see it.

Confidential to Quo Vadis: Choose your own direction. How will he take it? The same way any other humble, self-effacing egomaniac would react to being dumped.

NOTICE
Wedding information must be submitted to The Daily Standard within three weeks after the ceremony. Weddings one month old or older will NOT be run.

Brenda Essary and Gene Newman exchange vows

MATTHEWS— Brenda Essary and Gene Newman were united in marriage in a candelight ceremony on Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Kewanee United Methodist Church. The double- ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl G. Statler.

Gary Clark sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer", accompanied by Miss Jan Helms at the organ.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Essary of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Newman Sr. of Sikeston Route Three.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white voile and Cluny lace. The gown was designed with a pinafore bodice on Cluny lace and had a high neckline with lace collar and lantern sleeves capped with lace and ending with deep lace cuffs and tiny bridal buttons.

A self- fabric sash encircled the high- rise waist, with a demi- bell skirt adorned with bands of lace encircling the lower portion of the skirt.

Her double chapel- length veil was bordered with lace with a blusher veil attached and was held in place by a bandeau cap of matching lace topped with self- fabric bow. She carried a bouquet of fall flowers and, as she was escorted down the aisle, she presented her mother a long-stemmed rose.

Maid of honor was Phyllis Clayton of Sikeston whose gown of brown polyester was accented with egg shell colored lace.

Bridesmaid was Doris Shelby of Colorado, sister of the bride. Her dress was of yellow crepe. Both carried small bouquets of fall flowers.

Bill Boyd of New Madrid served the groom as best man. Groomsman was Eddie Newman of Sikeston, cousin of the groom.

As the bride and groom left the church, the bride presented the groom's mother a long- stemmed rose.

Sheila Boyd of New Madrid presided at the guestbook.

George T. Essary, brother of the bride, and Davis A. Winters of Kewanee served as ushers and candlelighters.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Newman are making their home in Kewanee.

Rowe head says Bluff plant to be main thrust of growth

POPLAR BLUFF— "The Poplar Bluff plant of Rowe Furniture Corp. without question, is the most modern upholstery furniture manufacturing plant in the nation and might well become the largest in the nation under one roof," Gerald M. Birnbach, Rowe president, told more than 100 Chamber of Commerce members at the organization's noon luncheon meeting Tuesday at Holiday Inn.

The Poplar Bluff facility will be the main thrust of our future growth," added the furniture company president who was on hand to serve the special $3 million bond issue passed by Poplar Bluff voters by a 90 per cent majority.

Birnbach said he expected 1973 sales to exceed $34 million.

In discussing the recent labor dispute in which the National Labor Relations Board ruled twice in favor of the company, Birnbach said, "We're determined to run our own business. We're not sure why they went on strike. They've tried to organize us before and they'll try again but we think we're doing the right thing for our people."

City Manager David Pence introduced the Poplar Bluff Industries and Chamber of Commerce Advisory Board composed of Bob Wolpers, Harlo Dunn, Earl Baumgardner and Ben Bidewell.

Officials of the Rowe company introduced by Birnbach were Norman Waxman, senior vice president; G. O. Woodlief, vice president of manufacturing; Al Jones, executive vice president and general manager of the Salem frame and Himmelberger-Harrison branches; Allan J. Bresnick, director of fabric administration and advertising, and Harvey Ptashek, director of sales administration.

Birnbach announced that effective Jan. 1, John Sisson will be assistant vice president for manufacturing and general manager of the Poplar Bluff facility and B. K. Webster will be assistant vice president of administration for the Poplar Bluff facility.

The company was founded in 1946 by Donald E. Rowe Sr., who was the general manager of the largest upholstered producer at that time. Rowe, by training was a methods and systems engineer, and the systems that were initiated by Rowe are still in use today.

Today Rowe manufactures a complete line of popular priced furniture which encompasses more than 100 individual styles of traditional, contemporary, Spanish, early American and sleeper sofas.

According to Birnbach, the company is probably the leading manufacturer in the country today.

Birnbach said that faith in the city by company officials was extremely well founded, as Poplar Bluff, the people, the Chamber of Commerce and the local government, has evidenced support and cooperation that Rowe is thankful for.

Gasless Sundays may help fill pews

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasless Sundays aren't expected to hurt those spiritual refueling stations, the churches. In fact, some religious leaders say it could boost attendance by keeping people on the hometown scene.

"It might be a blessing in disguise," said the Rev. Dr. W. Sterling Carey, president of the National Council of Churches, noting that the ban on Sunday gasoline sales could replace weekend trips with church-going.

"People may find again their local church, get to know their neighbors and have time to search again for the values which once made this nation one of hope and trust," he added.

However, the Rev. Dean M. Kelley, an inter-church specialist on relations with government, suggested people may simply apply an old biblical tip of Moses and obtain their travel fuel a day early.

"Presumably like the ancient children of Israel, they'll stock up on manna the day before," he says, recalling how "manna" fell in the wilderness each day except the sabbath, for which it was gathered the previous day.

In any case, the Sunday closing of filling stations isn't regarded as a hindrance to getting to worship services, even though participants largely get there by car these days.

"It obviously won't inhibit going to church, and it may help because people won't be so likely to be driving out of town," said Frank White, director of the interdenominational corporation information center.

The nation's major churches for several years have been urging a simpler life style to moderate consumption of dwindling natural resources. Many local churches across the country also are taking steps to cut their own uses of energy.

Maryland's Episcopal bishop David Leighton, of Baltimore, asked congregations to keep thermostats down to a minimum and recommended holding meetings in smaller quarters requiring less heat. He also suggested inter-faith sharing of facilities.

A check of Houston, Tex., churches by Louis Moore, religion editor of the Houston Chronicle, showed that many churches have decided to lower thermostats to 68 degrees and keep unecessary lights off.

The Rev. Robert Ball, of Houston's Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church, says it already had a policy of encouraging members to use car pools because of limited parking facilities.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Allen, of Houston's downtown First Methodist Church, said there is a possibility of scheduling Friday noon services for members who work downtown but live in the suburbs.

Many Catholic churches hold services on Saturday for people that can't make it on Sunday.

Msgr. John Lenihan, of Christ the King Roman Catholic Church in Jacksonville, Fla., said that parish may schedule all Masses on Saturday in case the energy pinch banned Sunday driving.

However, President Nixon, in his initial energy-conservation message, said there will be no ban on Sunday driving, such as has been imposed in some European countries.

Upper Room honors chaplains

Dr. Wilson O. Weldon, editor of The Upper Room, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., presents the 25th Upper Room Citation to Maj. Gen. Roy M. Terry, chief of chaplains of the U. S. Air Force; Maj. This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR DECEMBER 2, 1973

Scripture: John 1:6-13; 17 20:30-31; 21:24-25

Why The Gospel Of John?

For the next three months these lessons will concern the one who says to men, "I and the Father are One" and "I am the way, and the truth and the life."

John also states that "These are written that you may have life in His name." These lessons will elaborate on this statement.

One of the major objectives of John's book is to turn the unbeliever to one whose faith becomes strong enough to accept the life Christ promised.

Discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls in recent years has stimulated more interest in John, since there have been similarities noted in the two writings.

It is appropriate that we start this series with a question concerning John. This is a skeptical age, a time when new questions are regularly encountered.

Faith is good business to some persons. To others it is a concept or a belief that makes it possible for us to grow stronger as we grow older.

And to others faith is something that we accept much as we adopt a habit.

John wanted to assure us the eternal life that Paul discussed recently. In his message, John stressed the need for us to accept and to believe that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God."

John's Gospel was written in the early years of the 2nd Century. Its sources remain uncertain. The Interpreter's Commentary notes that "the gospel encourages an ever-deepening search for meaning."

All of the Gospels have the goal of developing our faith and belief. As Dr. Charles Laymon points out they continually tell us to "Believe, accept, respond." We are to grow from "babes in Christ" to maturity.

John has the ability to see things with a double vision. One is the earthly phase, while the other is the eternal reality. He had the difficult assignment of changing the thinking habits of persons from the Hellenistic modes to the Christian views.

In John we study theological interpretations. In his words we find guidelines for all who believe in Christ. The gospel is universal in scope.

John announces a "happening," a proclamation, a conversion, a new-birth. And as we accept John's offer we experience a change in our lives, and in our relationships with all others.

It is difficult for most of us to discuss religion. It is more difficult to discuss death and eternity.

Too many view eternal life solely as life after death. Actually, eternal life starts on earth and this situation should encourage us to listen carefully to what John says.

John wrote that his account was "selective". In this way, he might be compared to today's reporters and commentators. They, too, attempt to select the facts that will have lasting importance.

He also wrote to prove that Jesus is the Christ. Belief in Christ is the central issue of his day and ours as well. John wanted all the people to share their lives with Christ.

Much of what is stressed in today's lesson has been taught to us from our early childhood when we attended Sunday School. John knew, as teachers know today, that good points cannot be overstressed.

Throughout John we will learn about "signs" and "sayings." The first group refers to deeds or things that have an allegorical significance. In his "sayings" John takes a central topic and discusses its fully.

In preparing for the lessons ahead, we need to review John's portrayal of Christ as pre-existent with God. We need to visualize the quality of the life of Christ as promised by John.

Jesus, then, offers all the key to a fuller understanding of life both here and in eternity.

Chaplains honored for world service

NASHVILLE, Tenn.-- The 25th annual Upper Room Citation Award was presented recently to the chiefs of chaplains of the U. S. armed services, on behalf of all chaplains, both military and civilian, at a special dinner at Sheraton- Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. accepting the award for the chaplains around the world— were: Maj. Gen. Roy M. Terry, chief of chaplains of the Air Force, Maj. Gen. Gerhardt W. Hyatt, chief of chaplains of the Army; and Rear Adm. Francis L. Garrett, chief of chaplains of the Navy.

Dr. Wilson O. Weldon, world editor of The Upper Room said, in making the presentations, "these citations are presented in recognition of the devotion and leadership of the worldwide ministry of all chaplains who serve in times of war and peace, faithfully giving their noblest in ministering to human needs."

Each of the chiefs of chaplains, in accepting the award, paid high tribute to The Upper Room daily devotional guide for the part it has had in their ministry.

Chaplain Terry, decrying the lack of real communication said he would declare a citation to The Upper Room for its ministry of the printed word!

Chaplain Garrett said that The Upper Room is one of the most significant ministries of the church and Chaplain Hyatt reminded us that "this is a day in which our faith is being tested," and praised The Upper Room for its part in the total ministry of the church.

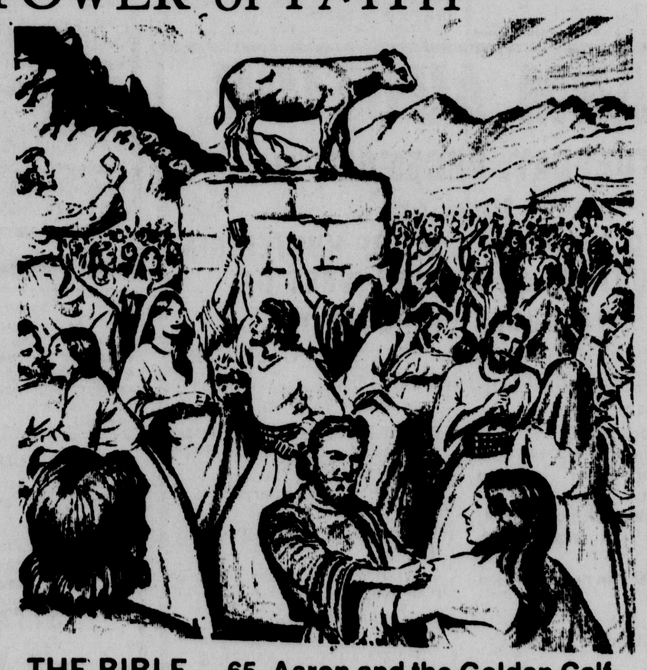
The POWER of FAITH



THE BIBLE 65. Aaron and the Golden Calf

When the children of Israel saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, they gathered together to ask Aaron to make them gods, for they did not know what had become of Moses.

"And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me. And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron."

Exodus 32:2-3.

Aaron then melted the golden earrings in the fire, and from the molten gold he fashioned the people a golden calf. Aaron next built an altar before the graven image and proclaimed the next day a feast day.

Meanwhile, the Lord informed Moses that the people had quickly turned aside from His commandments, and He ordered Moses to leave the mount. Moses came down from the mount carrying the two stone tablets upon which God's commandments had been written.

"And the tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables."

Exodus 32:16.

The children of Israel would soon have visited upon them God's wrath for breaking the second commandment.

What's the law?

The case of the imcompetent juror

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Roger fought a lengthy court battle with Harold that was full of suspense and expense. After the jury brought in a verdict against him, however, Roger found that it was also full of pretense. One of the jurors, he learned, a sleazy- eyed character, had been previously convicted of a felony. And under state law felons were not competent to sit as jurors.

"I insist upon a new trial," insisted Roger of the judge. "Jurors are supposed to have the courage of their convictions and not a record of convictions. With criminals on the panel, the verdict, obviously, is suspect."

"If Roger didn't like the looks of his sleazy- eyed juror," retorted Harold, "he should have checked him out before the trial began. As far as I was concerned, he looked just fine. In fact, after the verdict came in, he looked like a real doll."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Roger a new trial because of the presence of the incompetent juror?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that once the trial was over, it was too late for Roger to complain. While convicted felons may not be competent to act as jurors, noted the judge, by not seeking to discover the presence of a felon while picking the jury, Roger is deemed to have waived any objection he might have had with regard thereto.

(Based upon a 1973 Wyoming Supreme Court Decision)

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

Count it all joy, my brethren, when you meet various trials. (James 1:2)

PRAYER: Lord, help us to rejoice in all of live's experiences, and to celebrate life in its wholeness. In the spirit of the Master, who taught us the Prayer Perfect: "Our Father who art in heaven...Amen."

Starfish, also called sea stars, feed upon mollusks, especially oysters, clams and mussels and are occasionally removed as pests from oyster beds by means of large mops. A starfish is able to force open mollusk shells by sustained suction and then envelops the soft mollusk body with its stomach, which is extruded through its mouth, The World Almanac says. Starfish are able to regenerate missing parts.

Senators seek warning system

KENNETT — Both of Missouri's U.S. senators have joined efforts to secure an improved storm warning system for the Bootheel and Southeast Missouri.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton was advised of the efforts Monday and by Tuesday morning one of the Senator's staff members, Jack Lewis, had conferred with the National Weather Service offices in St. Louis and Memphis and had checked with television stations in Memphis to determine what was needed to improve communications.

The office of Sen. Stuart Symington was also alerted Monday to the campaign, and his administrative assistant Stanley R. Fike also began compiling information on the present system and what is required to improve it. In Symington's absence (he underwent a minor operation Monday in Washington), Fike assigned another staff member, James Davidson, to the project.

Lewis said that the information he had compiled thus far "raises a very serious question about the effectiveness of the weather alert system." Lewis talked several times Tuesday with William Waldheuser, supervising forecaster of the St. Louis National Weather Service office.

Waldheuser suggested the installation of a special NAWAS (National Warning System) line connecting National Weather Services offices in St. Louis and Memphis. This would enable the St. Louis office, which has the responsibility for issuing all severe storm warnings in Missouri, to notify immediately the Memphis office of an approaching storm in Southeast Missouri. Since the Memphis office has immediate access to air time on all three Memphis commercial television stations, the warning could be relayed almost immediately to this area.

A somewhat more complicated problem exists in notifying the Paducah, Ky., television station of an approaching severe storm in Southeast Missouri since the station receives its weather advisory news from the Louisville office of the National Weather Service.

The campaign was inaugurated following the deaths of two Dunklin Countians Saturday night from a tornado that went unreported — as far as Bootheel residents were concerned — by Memphis television stations.

One factor which may assist in securing an improved warning system for Southeast Missouri is the membership of Eagleton on the Senate Appropriations Committee. The state's junior senator serves as a member of an appropriations subcommittee, which considers appropriations requests from the National Weather Service.

A member of Eagleton's staff said hearings may be held on the NWS appropriations, at which time it would be possible to determine what improvements were being proposed for improved storm warning systems in Southeast Missouri.

Christmas activities set

CHAFFEE — DeWayne Bryant, Jaycee Christmas coordinator, has announced that the 1973 Christmas activities have been finalized.

On Dec. 8, at 1:30 p.m., the "Little Mr. and Miss Christmas" contest will be held downtown at Main and Yoakum. In case of bad weather, the contest will be held at the high school gymnasium at the same time.

The age limits for the contest are 2 through 6 years old. No dress requirement will be made, leaving it entirely up to the individual. Contestants will be limited to Chaffee and the immediate area. Entry blanks printed in the Chaffee Signal, should be filled out and returned to DeWayne Bryant, Route Two, Box 114 B, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

The "Little Mr. and Miss Christmas" winners will ride in the Christmas parade on Dec. 15 as parade marshals. Savings bonds will also be awarded to the two winners.

The Christmas parade will begin at 2 p.m. at Harmon Field. All floats entering the parade should be at the field by 1 p.m. for judging. Cash prizes offered this year for the float contest are as follows: First place — $75; second place — $50; third place, $25. Floats entering the parade and contest may use any theme that centers around or about Christmas. The Jaycees and Chamber of Commerce urge all local organizations and individuals to participate in the Christmas Parade. Several area bands will participate in the Christmas parade.

The house decorating contest announced earlier has been cancelled due to the energy crisis. The local Jaycee chapter urges all citizens in the area to comply with energy recommendations and requests.

This year the Jaycee Christmas party for grade school students in Chaffee will be held at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the high school gymnasium. Christmas films will be shown, candy given out, along with a visit from Santa Claus himself.

Anyone having questions concerning the Christmas activities should contact DeWayne Bryant, Richard Hodge or Gary Minor.

It is said that when Alexander the Great offered anything he wished to the Greek philosopher Diogenes, Diogenes asked him to move out of his light.

As fund drive ends, Malden short of goal

MALDEN-- The Malden United Fund drive is drawing to a close and it appears the goal of $15,000 will not be reached.

The board of directors for the United Fund has named some of the local recipients who will be directly affected by the success of the drive.

Included are: All scout troops: Both Boy and Girl Scout troops use the Scout Hut which must be maintained by monies received through the United Fund, including side repair and maintenance and utility bills. A portion of United Fund monies also are used for upkeep of summer camps for the 16 scout troops of Malden to use as they desire.

Locating expenses for a doctor: An attempt is being made by the United Fund board to secure a doctor for Malden. In the event a doctor is located and will visit Malden, the money will be used to pay his living expenses while he is in the city.

Ministerial Alliance: Recent requests for financial assistance from the Ministerial Alliance has increased its role in helping persons in need.

Malden Historical Museum: Malden is the only city of this size in the area which has a museum. The board would like to keep and enlarge the museum.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas"...

CHARLIE BROWN: THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS IN A NUTSHELL

He's awkward at parties. He sometimes stands like a stick in the corner, laughs before the joke is finished or spills his ice cream. His pals call him hopeless, wishy-washy, blockhead and failure- face. But without Charlie Brown, the rest of Charles M. Schulz's little Peanuts would miss a lot of points.

To whom else could they turn for that best of all cures for disillusionment– "a chocolate cream and a friendly pat on the back"-- free? Self- appointed Peanut psychiatrist Lucy might advise the cream, but she'd charge her usual five- cent fee for the idea– and she's not known for many pats on the back that don't send a Peanut sprawling. And who but Charlie Brown would make a project of figuring out for the clan what things are all about-- really important things like Christmas?

With help from thumb- sucking philosopher Linus, Charlie discovers the real meaning of Christmas for the other Peanuts on "A Charlie Brown Christmas," animated Peabody and Emmy award- winning special to be rebroadcast Thursday, Dec. 6 (8:00- 8:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Linus is as deep a thinker as Charlie Brown, but he works out his little philosophies more privately and has come to the conclusion that there are certain topics you should rarely discuss in public, even Peanut public: politics (as proved by his campaign speeches) and special things you believe in, like a Great Pumpkin.

Charlie Brown, on the other hand, is never satisfied until he has shared with the clan any answer he may have found. The pint- sized roundhead is also willing to share his beliefs, his hopes and his opinion of himself.

His complete candor motivates him to patter up to Lucy's home-made psychiatry stand, plunk down five cents and bare his soul.

"I want people to say, 'You know, that Charlie Brown is a great guy,' " he once told Lucy during an "analysis" session. "I want to be a special person. I want to be needed."

When poor Charlie gets uptight about the commercialism of the yuletide season on "A Charlie Brown Christmas," he pays his fee and tells Lucy that he feels "sort of let down."

As the other Peanuts get entangled in the season's trimmings, Charlie digs through the wrappings for the real gift of Christmas. And when he realizes what all the decorating, card- sending and gift- giving really symbolize, he's still not completely happy until he has communicated the message to the rest of the Peanut world.

He may be shy, bumbling, introspective, and an example of a variety of many little failings that make man human, but Charlie Brown is also the most involved Peanut.

You've got a lot to live!

Nixon nears decision on gas tax, rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may be nearing a decision on whether to impose gasoline rationing, higher gasoline taxes or both.

He scheduled a meeting for today with his cabinet-level energy group. Such a move usually means that a decision is near.

Sources said the energy group is leaning heavily toward recommending rationing to Nixon. Senior administration officials have concluded that Congress would not approve a large increase in the federal tax on gasoline to discourage driving, the sources said.

However, Nixon is known to view rationing as a last resort. On Nov. 7 he said the American people would resent peacetime rationing "very, very much" and that he personally disliked it because of the power it gave to the officials who administer it.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday that no decision has been made either way.

Contingency plans are being drafted for rationing, the White House has confirmed.

Stein, reporting to newsmen on a high-level assessment of the fuel shortage's economic impact, predicted it will push the nation's economy down to near-recession levels next year.

Unemployment, now standing at 4.5 per cent, will rise to close to 6 per cent, he said. That would mean that more than a million workers would lose jobs.

Stein said Americans can expect sharply higher fuel prices. He said the government should maintain price controls on petroleum because oil companies would otherwise reap windfall profits.

He said the worst impact would come in the first six months of next year and said the output of the economy could decline from January through March.

In other developments:

—Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., criticized continuing U.S. oil shipments to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand during the domestic shortage. The Pentagon said the amounts of oil have been reduced but the policy of providing fuel to the three nations remains unchanged.

—The Arab oil-producing countries promised to relax the energy squeeze on Britain, France, Spain and those African nations that broke relations with Israel. The Arabs have cut off all oil for the United States.

—Chrysler Corp. said it will close seven auto assembly plants for varying periods in January. Chrysler said the move was to change over to increased small-car production.

—Robert D. Timm, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the fuel shortage probably will result in some cities losing all scheduled air service.

—The House Public Works Committee approved a bill which would set a nationwide speed limit for all vehicles of 55 miles per hour.

Shumate gets 15 years

NEW MADRID — Judge William L. Ragland assessed punishment of 15 years in custody of the Department of Corrections for Ozell Shumate, 45, of New Madrid, who was found guilty of sodomy Thursday by a Circuit Court jury.

Shumate was accused of committing unnatural sex acts upon an 11- year- old New Madrid boy on March 4.

Defense attorney was allowed 30 days to file a motion for new trial and Jan. 8 was set for the motion to be heard.

Three witnesses — the victim, Deputy Sheriff Russell Cobb, who was a city police officer at the time of the crime, and Dr. Thomas H. Pinkstaff of Sikeston — were called by Pros. Atty. Hal E. Hunter Jr.

No witnesses were called by the defense.

The victim testified he and his 14- year- old brother were in a coin laundry about 7 p.m. on March 4 washing clothes. He stated Shumate told him he would pay him $2 to clean his house. The boy said he left with Shumate and walked to Shumate's house on Capitol Street.

The boy stated that while he was cleaning the bathroom commode, Shumate entered the bathroom and the offense was committed.

The boy described both oral and anal unnatural sex acts which he said Shumate committed upon him. Further testifying, he said he was at Shumate's house a long time and that Shumate "kept on doing the same thing."

According to the boy's testimony, he left Shumate's house about 2:10 a.m., and Shumate told him to come back the next day and he would pay him.

While he was walking home, the boy said a police officer saw him and stopped. He said he told the officer where he had been and what had occurred. Then he directed the officer to Shumate's house.

Cobb testified he had been looking for the boy and spotted him walking on Mott Street about 2 a.m. Cobb, who was driving a police car, said he picked up the boy and the youth told him what

Cape child killed

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A 15- month- old girl, Amy Clifton, became the year's fourth traffic fatality in Cape Girardeau following a two-car collision at 7:30 a.m. Thursday at the dangerous Bloomfield South Kingshighway intersection.

The baby's father, Ronald W. Clifton, 25, of 3109 Meadow Lark lane, was listed in serious condition and his 3- year- old son, Timothy, suffered minor injuries, Southeast Missouri Hospital officials said.

The child was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital where all three were taken by Cape County Ambulance Service.

Clifton was apparently attempting to go east across Kingshighway at 7:30 a.m. and had crossed the center line when the small car he was driving was struck in the right front fender by a north-bound car driven by Richard Nation, 34, Chaffee, who was uninjured, city police at the scene said.

Authorities said when Clifton's car was struck it was spun around and both doors came open. All three occupants were thrown clear of the car.

Three of the four fatalities that have occurred this year have been on Kingshighway and the Bloomfield intersection has been the site of numerous accidents authorities said.

A city official said, "The State Highway Department has control over all traffic control and lights on the highway.

He said, "They have been requested frequently to install a four- way intersection there, instead of BENTON— "There is nothing that can be done to prevent Mississippi County from operating a sanitary landfill in Scott County as long as they comply with legal requirements, so you might as well give up, Presiding Judge Les D. Lankford of Chaffee told protesting landowners and residents of the Illmo, Scott City and Commerce area appearing before the Scott County Court Thursday.

The opposition group has been protesting the proposed establishment of a Mississippi County landfill on 80 acres of Scott County land owned by Herb Pickett of rural Illmo.

The group learned in October that Mississippi County had entered into a contract with an option to buy the Pickett land on the former Albert Meinz farm.

The objecting landowners circulated petitions and reportedly obtained more than 500 signatures of persons opposed to the landfill.

One of the main objections being brought out by the group is that a watershed from this land will pollute Holden Creek which runs through adjoining land and is used to water livestock.

Several landowners have said they think their property values will be hurt if Mississippi County is permitted to operate a

Mailing dates are moved up

Postmaster Don Pasaka today joined Postmaster General E. T. Klassen in urging Sikeston residents to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the U.S. Postal Service originally recommended, so the energy shortage will not interfere with on- time deliveries.

"The urgency of the fuel energy crisis compels us to request a one- week advancement of suggested dates we gave for domestic mail and a two- week advancement for foreign mail," Pasaka said.

The new deadline for posting domestic first- class Christmas mail is Dec. 8 rather than Dec. 15, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by Dec. 3, instead of Dec. 10.

Airmail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than Dec. 15, rather

4 injured in 2-car crash

Four people sustained minor injuries Thursday afternoon in a two- car accident at the intersection of Wakefield and North Kingshighway.

Police said a car driven by Bonnie Newton, 914 Davis Blvd., attempted to pull across North Kingshighway on Wakefield at 4:50 p.m. and struck the left side of a car driven by Bruce Alan Glastetter, 19, of Benton Route One.

The Glastetter car was knocked into a power pole on the southwest corner of the intersection, knocking it down.

Glastetter was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for multiple bruises. Mrs. Newton's children, Diana, 10, Lori, 8, and David, 4, were treated for bruises.

Mrs. Newton was arrested for careless and imprudent driving.

Harrington back in Sikeston jail

James (Peterboy) Harrington, 24, was returned to the Sikeston city jail Thursday night from Chicago after his efforts to block extradition from Illinois were rejected Thursday in a court hearing.

Harrington is accused of the 1971 murder of Kenneth Ellison during a dice game on Felker Street.

He is scheduled to be arraigned Tuesday before Judge Lloyd Briggs in Magistrate Court.

Harrington attempted to fight extradition to Sikeston by claiming he was not in the city or even in Scott County at the time of the shooting and that he was not the James Harrington police were seeking.

Scott County Sheriff John Dennis and a witness to the shooting went to Chicago to testify Thursday morning that Harrington was the man sought.

Police today said they have tightened security measures to prevent unauthorized people from getting near Harrington.

Ellison, 22 years old at the time of his death, was shot once in the chest with a .22- caliber pistol while participating in a dice game early on Sept. 19, 1971.

Witnesses to the shooting said Ellison and a companion left the Community Club in Sunset Addition and joined the dice game.

The assalant walked up to the game, drew a gun and ordered everyone to stand up. Ellison hesitated then was shot in the chest as he turned around.

The assailant then walked away from the game and no one gave chase.

Police said Ellison was armed with a small- caliber

REFORM; YES!
DESTRUCTION; NO!

(No. 3 in series, The Presidency and the Press)

A vigorous, alert, aggressive, crusading press is the Republic's best guarantee for lasting freedom. As to that truism (thank Heavens!) there is little disagreement.

Today, our nation is involved in a great debate concerning the abuse of Presidential power. This is a legitimate discussion, one of continuing importance in a country which seeks to preserve the principle that political, economic and moral power be vested in the people. And for the conduct of that debate, a free press is essential.

As with all matters, however, there are two sides to the coin. Even as there are dangers inherent in political power, there are dangers that the vast power of the press itself, if not handled with restraint, may also be subverted.

There is good reason to believe that some of those involved in the attack against Mr. Nixon ("chivied and harrassed as no President before him had ever been," according to liberal writer Theodore White) have exceeded the bounds of legitimate debate, and have extended their assault to include not simply the President — the man — but the very office of the Presidency itself; the institution.

If one recent event, a college student demonstration demanded impeachment. An inquiring reporter asked the youth who they proposed to fill the vacancy. It was learned that they not only didn't know; they didn't care. Their "contribution" to the debate was not constructive, but simply destructive.

Mrs. Marie Gifford recently editorialized on radio stations KEEL and KMBQ, Shreveport, Louisiana: "Over the past ten years we have seen a gradually accelerated effort to kill the Presidency. I submit that this is a dangerous game to play ... Today it has become great sport to belittle the President. Whether or not those who engage in this sport realize what they are doing, I do not know. But they are killing the Presidency as surely as a bullet killed John Kennedy.

"The stakes are too great for power-hungry politicians, and yes, sorrowfully, power-hungry newsmen, to kill the Presidency."

Power in all branches of the government bureaucracy in Washington has indeed reached alarming proportions. There has been, and continues to be, abuses of that power. Our free press can amke a major contribution toward the reduction of excessive government power.

Reform? Definitely! But destruction? No!

PRESIDENT CAN SET AN EXAMPLE

President Nixon, in his drive to conserve energy, can set an example for the nation.

He can travel by car at 50 miles per hour, instead of helicopter or plane, close down Camp David, his Miami home and his California estate, stay in the White House, cut temperatures to 68 degrees, use fewer lights.

LET OTHERS SAVE FUEL

Our President found the White House in Washington too uncomfortable last weekend and jetted down to Key Biscayne to get away from Watergate and the overwhelming desires of his people that he resign. The news reporter gave the amount of fuel his jet and those which have to accompany him, would use on the trip, but we forget how many thousand gallons it was. And then it was added, the foregoing does not include the plane which carries his private automobile. Our example setting President did have the jets reduce their speed 10 or 15 miles per hour to save fuel. It was not mentioned whether he turned down the thermostats at the Washington White House, turned off any of its lights, nor whether he would need more lights and probably extra air conditioning at Key Biscayne. Believe he wants all of us to do without, but can't stay away Key Biscayne, San Clemente and Camp David.

According to confidential reports we are getting, the Arabs and Israelis aren't about to pound their swords into plowshares, despite an apparent cessation of hostilities. There's too much at stake, on both sides. The Mideast will remain a powder keg, for a long time to come.

That means problems for the U. S., not to mention Europe and Japan. The Arabs have already cut off all oil to this country. This action is less significant for its short range effects -- though these shouldn't be minimized -- than for its long range implications.

The U. S., like the rest of the world, is already in an energy bind. Fuel oil and gasoline shortages will be aggravated further by any prolonged lack of access to arab oil, even though we rely on it for only a small fraction of our needs. It involves the future of our relations with Europe and Japan -- in trade, monetary matters, political alliances, defense.

Let's face it, Arab oil is a powerful weapon -- not because we are so heavily dependent on it, but because Europe and Japan are. It is true that giant U. S. oil companies like Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf, Standard Oil could be badly hurt by developments in the Mideast. But the huge European demand for Arab oil has pitched many of our Western allies into the Arab camp at a time when American support for Israel has been intensified.

Arab oil is driving a wedge between the U. S. and Western Europe. It's likely to widen more, war or no war in the Middle East. Europe feels threatened by shifting trade patterns as a result of fluctuations in currency that have given the U. S. a much improved position to compete internationally. This has fostered a growing trend toward protectionism, despite all talk about the need for freer trade among nations. The split between Europe and the U. S. over the Arab- Israeli dispute will accelerate this trend, making cooperation on trade and monetary matters much more difficult.

Here's the nub of the problem. The Arabs are making no subtle noises that they won't accept paper money much longer. The Europeans are dependent on Arab oil. So how much longer are Europeans going to depend on paper money, backed by nothing more substantial than dollars -- or SDR's? How much longer are Europeans going to put up with our foot-dragging in monetary reform? Not much longer, you may be sure.

AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION

A couple of years ago, the bandwagon had a lot of riders supporting gun control legislation. In the controversy over the subject, those citizens who happened to own or believe in the right of ownership of firearms were looked upon as something out of a Neanderthal past. For the time being, the controversy has tapered off, and the public is even beginning to learn more about the kind of people who have upheld gun ownership. The latter group includes sportsmen, conservationists and simply independent - minded people who see ownership of a firearm as representative of individual responsibility under self-government.

No organization has done more to present the vast body of gun owning citizens in the proper light than the National Rifle Association. An example of its work was evident during the 1970 Annual Meeting of the NRA. More than 10,000 gun fanciers toured the exhibits of antique and modern firearms and related accessories at the organization's 99th Annual Meeting. Almost every state in the Union, several Canadian provinces and a number of foreign countries were represented at the gathering. Awards were presented to members of the Association for outstanding efforts in behalf of local NRA clubs. These clubs, established across the country, carry on activities directed toward firearm training, safety and marksmanship.

During one session at the NRA meeting, an official of the Fish and Wildlife, Parks and Marine Resources of the U. S. Department of the Interior urged the NRA and its members to continue their conservation work and assist in the development of new programs and techniques to better man's environment. Other high- level government officials attending the meeting presented their views on law enforcement,crime and related matters. As was obvious to anyone attending the NRA meeting, this organization of more than a million lawabiding, gun owning citizens is one of the most constructive influences in the country on the side of law, order and citizen responsibility. It is a typically American institution.

U. S. SPENDING LID URGED TO STOP RUNAWAY BUDGET

Runaway federal spending, which has risen 25 per cent since 1970, has resulted from the lack of "adequate spending controls" by the government, according to the National Association of Manufacturers.

In testimony before a Senate subcommittee, NAM spokesman A. L. Bolton, Jr., president of Bolton- Emerson, Inc., Lawrence, Mass., recommended an all-inclusive expenditure ceiling, creation of a joint committee of the budget which would "force" a meaningful consolidation of the expenditure review function, periodic review of federal programs with a three-year limit on authorizations, and a Federal Economy Act that would allow the President to name low- priority programs to be eliminated automatically unless he was specifically overruled by Congress within a certain period.

Mr. Bolton said that the apparent transfer of power over federal finances to the executive branch is "less a usurpation of power than an uneven development of the procedures, knowledge, and resources for program evaluation, long range planning, and total budget review."

The NAM spokesman said that the expenditure ceiling must apply both to Congress and the Executive Branch and encompass all budget expenditures, including the so-called "uncontrollable" funds that Congress has approved in prior years.

GETT OFF HEARNES' BACK

Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes appears to have acted properly by turning over his papers and records to the University of Missouri historical collection, as his predecessors have done.

A 1965 public records law says official state records may not be disposed of without permission of the State Records Commission. By making the university a depository of his papers, Hearnes has not disposed of anything. Rather, he has preserved documents and memorabilia for the benefit of the public and for scholars.

It is only natural that a Governor's papers should be a mix of personal correspondence and matters of official business. The tradition that a Governor's papers should be kept secret during his lifetime is understandable — it can spare a lot of people embarrassment.

Hearnes has been willing to turn over financial records to the state auditor's office, and has already done so to a certain extent. Hearnes says he will give State Auditor John Ashcroft any specific records Ashcroft requests but he will not let the auditor root through his entire collection. Hearnes wants to retain the confidentiality of his correspondence, which he is entitled to do.

There should be ample opportunity for the state auditor to get any financial records he needs from disbursing offices. Ashcroft can ask the State Comptroller and State Treasurer for assistance if he needs it.

TYING DOWN THE SAFETY VALVE

Sudden, explosive increases in wholesale prices sometime ago demonstrated one of the greatest dangers of price and wage control which many have warned against from the beginning. They are merely a shield behind which the basic force of inflation -- excessive governmental deficit spending -- continues to build up. Politicians feel safe in advocating bigger and better vote- getting handouts, and taxpayers tend to become less vigilant and to believe the fatuous talk about inflation having been brought under "control." Then suddenly, under the pressure of new spending records, we have a dollar crisis, and living costs again take off for the stratosphere. Each time wage and price controls are applied, it is like tying down a safety valve on steam boiler while continuing to stoke the furnace.

The present determined efforts of the Administration to curb government spending have been called a "... key to success in stemming inflation." It is up to the taxpayers and to all citizens to recognize this fundamental truth and to judge the performance of their elected representatives in Congress, state legislatures and elsewhere accordingly.

THE ENDURING HOSTILITY OF THE KREMLIN

More often these days it is happening that men identified by philosophy and association with the left wing during their active careers, change and write very differently when their professional careers are over. The Dean Acheson who wrote from retirement about his experiences in foreign policy sounded very different from the Dean Acheson who, as President Truman's Secretary of State, virtually invited the communists to conquer South Korea. Men such as Allen Drury and Arthur Krock who once wrote for the New York Times, with no sign of disagreement or embarrassment, now publish exposes in novels or memoirs, featuring the subservience of their former colleagues to the pro- Red line.

Now another important figure has joined this interesting and significant group. He is Charles E. Bohlen, adviser on Soviet affairs to five Presidents and long- time U. S. ambassador to Moscow. Bohlen was widely condemned as "soft on communism" in 1953. At the time there was good reason to believe that he was, but now, in retirement, writing as a "witness to history, 1929-1969" Bohlen tells us that there is no real mellowing in Russia and the "Soviet Union remains virtually unchanged" since Stalin's death.

Bohlen declares: "The ideological element of Soviet policy is of vital importance. It means that there can be no harmonious relations with Moscow..There is no sign of evolution of the Soviet state to make it more reasonable in dealing with other nations." He counsels us to "continue along the lines of the policy that has been generally followed since World War II." HLH

WASHINGTON-- There's a confidential, holocaustic energy report dated Nov. 8 in Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's desk. And in his closet is an oversized Icelandic sweater. The ex- Marine, who is President Nixon's globe-trotting braintruster, puts more faith in the sweater than in the document.

The Treasury study is characteristic of the hysteria now sweeping the nation terrorized by reports of gas gaps, oil shortages and petroleum products scarcities. So help me, one bright governmental chap said the other day there'll be so much unemployment, there'll be riots, rebellion and mobilized troops in the streets because of looming crunches and joblessness.

The confidential staff report to Shultz sees a possible 7 to 9 million unemployed by 1975. Its author predicts the Arab oil boycott will run well over a year. Another federal official opines three years. The memorandum sees no relief-- not enough available coal, nor land on which to pile it, nor money sufficiently economical to reconvert boilers to coal, nor even stokers, no longer produced in the U. S.

So it goes everywhere-- on paper. Hysteria has bred hoarding. Fuel black marketeers have shown up in and around Kansas City, Mo., it is reported. Responsible executives of heavy industries have been forced to warn that, for example, some 60,000 jobs will be lost in the steel industry if it is held down to the fuel level of 1972. The heavy construction contractors are complaining of lack of propane gas and diesel fuel.

But a hard- nosed count I've made with the aid of veteran government specialists indicates that there are fewer than 25,000 now jobless or temporarily laid off across the U. S. for lack of fuel.

There is no solid information on the oil and gas gas- induced unemployment. There is one solid figure-- some 86 million people are working.

There are airline layoffs. Employment in Wichita, Kans., site of production of private planes (Cessna, Lear, Boeing, et al.) is sloughing off. Construction contractors in Ohio, California, Kansas, Texas, Arizona, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri and Kentucky have laid off several thousand men for lack of diesel fuel and propane gas.

But most of these are temporary. It is natural that each industry should begin protecting itself-- the squeaky-wheel- gets- the grease sort of thing.

But there is energy-producing fuel. The U. S. exports some 50 million tons of coal a year. And if the environmentalists would develop some new momentary passion, all sorts of gas and "dirty"oil and coal reserves could be tapped. We may get a little sooty but what of it, actually, until the supplies roll in from nuclear plants and Alaska-- yes, and the Middle East.

For example, in New York Cith the other evening I interviewed Bertram Schwartz, Consolidated Edison's executive vice president for fuel supplies. Also, his counterpart Eugene Luntey of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co. They told me there are sufficient natural gas reserves on hand to see the megalopolis and its New York suburbs, all with a total of over 10 million people, right through next year. Schwartz says there would be no blackouts, no brownouts, no power shortages for transportation if the city officials would let "Con- Ed" burn coal.

But the big city's avant-garde environmentalist- minded elite say no-- and won't even permit the utility to buy and store coal.

Luntey told me his company is getting gas from Algeria. Sounds like good news.

There are vast supplies of fuel in this nation. But it's ill-distributed. Shultz, reaching for his Icelandic sweater, says the answer is in priorities-- industry first so jobs can be saved, transportation, residential, commercial users and electric utilities will have to be supplied.

But, says Shultz, we are entering a new era of life styles. It's a matter of cutting down on non- essentials. It will be rough on the Sunday driver and the ski innkeeper. But not on the auto and steel workers. An increased industrial workers' productivity would help, indeed.

But Shultz and Presidential domestic adviser Mel Laird, who sports a tan buttoned sweater around the White House, and others in the brain trust don't envision millions of new jobless. Displacement, yes. Economic disaster, no.

There will be a traditional postwar slump and some resultant unemployment. No one wants it. But who wants war? At worst, say insiders, it will be the Year of the Sweater.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Maritime Head Collected Nixon Cash From Shippers

WASHINGTON-- Confidential Senate Watergate documents show that salty-tongued Federal Maritime Chairwoman Helen Bentley collected at least $20,000 in donations for the Nixon campaign from the shipping industry she is supposed to regulate.

The documents describe Mrs. Bentley's dealings with the veteran shipper, Captain Leo Berger, a partner in Avon steamships of Lake Success, Long Island. Both were interviewed by committee investigators in recent weeks.

A summary of Ms. Bentley's brief interview with committee sleuth William Mayton reports: "He asked her a few times in many different ways if she ever solicited money for the 1972 campaign and she always responded negatively."

When Berger was cross-examined, however, he confessed that he and his partner, Peter Constas, gave "$20,000 in cash to Ms. Bentley which she gave to Stans." Former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans was President Nixon's chief fund raiser and is now under criminal indictment in the campaign contributions case of financier Robert Vesco.

The summary quotes Ms. Bentley as telling the Senate Watergate staff that "the Avon Shipping Company had no business before her" when she passed the campaign hat. "They gave her the money because they knew that she was a Republican," and they wanted the money, according to the summary of her testimony, "to go to the GOP."

The truth is that Avon, like most shipping companies, did have business before the Federal Maritime Commission. Such firms must get certification from the commission, under Ms. Bentley, that they have the financial means to pay for cleaning up any oil spills.

We reached Ms. Bentley, who explained yeastily that she had told the committee staff about the certification question herself and could not understand why it was left out of the summary of her interview.

At Avon, Captain Berger defended the chairwoman, saying there had been no solicitation. His campaign contribution, he said, "was voluntary." Then he added brusquely: "I said everything I'm going to say before the committee. Goodnight."

Despite the gruff sea captain's modesty about his contributions, our investigation backs up the Watergate committee's finding. The records of secret cash contributions to the Nixon campaign show a "Captain Leo Berger" and "Peter Constas," both listed at Avon's Lake Success address, each gave $10,000.

FOOTNOTE: In September 1970, we reported how Ms. Bentley was asked by then Vice President Spiro Agnew to pass the hat in shipping circles for an Agnew crony running for governor of Maryland. Dutifully, she contacted about 10 "top echelon shipping executives," she admitted.

INTELLIGENCE DIGEST: Despite official denials, U. S. intelligence agencies have established that the Soviets have delivered nuclear warheads to Egypt. Apparently, the warheads haven't been turned over to the Egyptians but are kept under the control of a special Soviet nuclear unit...Intelligence reports warn that the Kremlin has been pressuring the Arab nations to nationalize western oil holdings. The reports suggest that the Soviets may hope to start tapping the Arab oil fields for themselves, because their own oil fields in rugged Siberia are becoming increasingly difficult to develop... Diplomatic reports indicate that the NATO allies may be closing ranks after their initial shock over the Arab oil embargo. At first, the NATO partners began scrambling for themselves for vital oil supplies. But allied leaders, apparently, have suddenly been jolted into recognizing the danger of dividing the West. Quiet new moves have been made to restore more consultation and cooperation.

One intelligence report tells of an exchange between the cease- fire negotiators, Israel's Maj. Gen. Ahron Yariv and Egypt's Lt. Gen. Mohamed Gamasi. Yariv asked whether they should turn the negotiations over to civilians. Gamasi readily agreed. "Tomorrow," he said, "let us return in civilian clothes"... A State Department telegram, intended for official eyes only, reveals how the United States has been aiding the nation that has cut off our oil. The United States has established a military logistical support system for Saudi Arabia. Because the Saudi army hasn't developed "the required degree of expertise" to manage the system, states the telegram, "limited US (government's) assistance will be required" ...Intelligence reports quote Saudi Arabian leaders as saying one reason for the oil boycott was to break what they believed to be the Zionist hold on the U. S. press and bring the Arab story forcibly to the attention of the American public.

3 to stand trial on burglary charges

CHARLESTON — Following a preliminary hearing Thursday before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr., Ronnie Lane and Larry Johnson of East Prairie were bound over to Circuit Court on felony charges of burglary and stealing stemming from a Nov. 1 break- in at the Melvin Guinn home near East Prairie.

A portable color television set, stereo combination set and five speakers were stolen during the breakin.

Testifying during the preliminary were Melvin Guinn, Kenny Williford, Deputy Sheriffs Robert Smith and Jack Ivie and Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

The break- in was discovered about 5:30 p.m. Nov. 1, according to Guinn, who said he returned home from work to find a rear door of the mobile home had been forced open. He notified the highway patrol which apparently contacted Sheriff Simmons who sent Deputy Smith to investigate.

Guinn said he was notified the following morning by Simmons that the stolen articles had been brought to his office.

Kenny Williford of East Prairie testified he was riding around and drinking with Lane and Johnson on the day in question and that about 5:30 p.m. Lane asked to borrow his car. He said he was taken to the poolroom in East Prairie where he remained until picked up by the two men later.

Williford said he drove the men to the mobile home of Johnson's brother, Wayne Johnson, in East Prairie, where Lane opened the trunk of the car and he saw a television set and some other things.

"Ronnie (Lane) said the things came from the Guinn trailer and I got scared and told them to take the stuff out of my car because I didn't want to get involved in anything," Williford said.

Deputy Ivie said he questioned Williford the following morning "on a hunch," since he had been told by an unidentified source that Williford's car had been seen at a trailer home. Ivie said he went to the Wayne Johnson home, talked with Mrs. Johnson and recovered two speakers which he took to the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Simmons said the other stolen articles were brought to his office the following morning by two men, whose names he did not reveal.

Lane and Johnson are scheduled to appear in Circuit Court Dec. 11. Johnson is free on $10,000 bond and Lane remains in custody.

Anthony Peterson of Charleston waived preliminary hearing on felony charges of burglary and stealing and was bound over to Circuit Court for a Dec. 11 appearance. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Carl Edward Cassell and Gary Donald Easton of Charleston, who were arrested along with Peterson for the break- in at Cecil's Tobacco Store on Sept. 26, will appear for a preliminary hearing before Judge Brown on Dec. 13. They were released on their own recognizance.

A preliminary hearing for Bruce Edward Jinkerson of Zalma, charged with possession of a controlled substance (LSD), was scheduled for Dec. 13. Jinkerson, arrested Nov. 12 in Charleston, is free on $1,000 bond.

Judge Brown issued commitment orders for Gary Scott after Scott failed to meet the conditions of probation given March 31 on a non- support charge.

Trial for Roger D. Scott of East Prairie, charged with driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license was revoked, was scheduled on Dec. 20. Scott is free on $225 bond.

Violation of the wildlife code brought $66 fines and 10- day suspended jail sentences to Gary Brown, Kenneth Wayne Farrell and Larry McCutchen of East Prairie. The same charge against Jean Iberg was continued to Dec. 6.

Martin W. George Jr. of Bertrand was fined $173.20 on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The same charge against Daniel Wells Moit of Bertrand and Kathyrn Frances Alcorn of Sikeston was continued to Dec. 6. A driving while intoxicated charge against Henry Lewis Swope of Charleston was continued to Dec. 13.

Middemeanor cases and fines included: Charles Rondal Thurman of East Prairie, defective brakes, $21; Larry Eugene Hoppingarner of Charleston, expired operator's license, $21; Frankie Gray Brewer of East Prairie, speeding, $35; billy Wade Brewer of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31; and Virnon Eugene Kemp of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31.

In civic suits, Wilbur L. Davis was awarded judgment of $51 and costs in an account suit brought against Theodore Lyons of Charleston. W. C. Bryant received a total judgment of $266.30 plus costs in a note suit against Pearlie Branigan Kent.

Cases continued to Dec. 6 included Charles Hamilton of Charleston, careless and imprudent driving; Charles Phillip Allred of East Prairie, no Missouri PSC license and no copy of the Missouri special fuel users license on truck; Maxine Hale Stabbs, common assault; Michael Anderson Rytter of Charleston, out- of- state vehicle license while a Missouri resident; and Roy Vernon Dean of East Prairie, possession of alcoholic beverage (beer) while a minor.

A charge of failure to cause her children to attend the R-2 Elementary schools against Katherine Willis was continued to Dec. 13. Also continued to Dec. 13 was a charge of leaving the scene of an accident against James Raymond Wheatley.

A charge of improper registration by illegal use of license plates against Robert Michael Parr of Bertrand was continued to Dec. 20, and a driving while operator's license revoked charge against William A. Mannon of Matthews was continued to Dec. 27.

Appearing before Judge Brown earlier this week were:

Charles A. Jones, driving while intoxicated and operating a motor vehicle without a license, fined $168.85; Joseph Albert Dixon, stealing, 30- day suspended sentence and six month probation; Randy Eugene Hale, speeding, fined $32; Billy Ray Nolen, improper registration and driving while operator's license revoked, $75.20.

C. B. Loveless, speeding, $21; Michael Thomas Medlock, driving without a motorcycle license, $21; and Danny Ross Mays, James Frederick Day and Ruben Mays Jr., violation of the wildlife code, fined $66 each.

"The seriousness of the fuel shortage to the postal service is underlined," Pasaka said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 350 million gallons of fuel to travel 2.25 billion miles delivering the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons."

"Public cooperation on meeting these new, advance mail early dates is needed to help us complete all Christmas deliveries," Pasaka emphasized.

Davis given 6 months for accepting stolen goods

BENTON — Jerry Lynn Davis of Illmo was sentenced to six months in the county jail by Judge Marshall Craig Thursday in Circuit Court. Davis was charged with receiving stolen property taken in a June 27 burglary of the Quickie Market in Illmo.

According to Pros. Atty. Jim Moore, Davis had previously been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with the robbery of Quickie Market but he repeatedly claimed he was innocent and voluntarily took a lie detector test.

The examiner made his report to Moore, stating that, in his opinion, Davis did not break into and enter the store but thought the test indicated he was involved in some manner.

Moore said Davis pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property.

Judge Craig ordered the Department of Probation and Parole to investigate Davis to determine if he should be placed on probation and report the findings on Dec. 13.

the caution light, but they said their surveys have indicated the conditions now are not such that one is warranted."

Bloomfield was realigned in late 1971 to make access to Kingshighway less dangerous and a flashing warning signal was hung over the middle of the intersection.

City Manager W. G. Lawley said the number of accidents has decreased and when the realignment work was done lines had been put in to connect a four-way signal for some time in the future, but he added the city has no control over the proposal.

had happened. He stated the boy showed him Shumate's house on Capitol Street. Cobb said he then contacted a sheriff's deputy and they arrested Shumate at his house.

Testimony from Dr. Pinkstaff, who examined the boy on March 5, was limited when Judge Ragland sustained an objection raised by defense counsel. The attorney stated that the doctor was not present and was unable to testify of his own knowledge concerning a throat culture examination made by a laboratory technician.

Dr. Pinkstaff stated he had found minimal physical signs of abrasions about the victim's mouth.

In his closing statement to the jury, the defense counsel stated that no corroborating evidence had been presented by the State to substantiate the accusations by the youth.

In rebuttal, Hunter argued that the defense had presented no contradictory evidence and that the jury should make a decision based on testimony from the witnesses.

The jury deliberated about 10 minutes before returning the verdict.

Jury members were Jim Helms, Wilson Phillips, Gene LaFont, Whitson Henry Sr., Arthur Duncan, Herman E. Schultz, E. C. Reed, Mike Proffer, Jimmy Ellis, Billy Ellis, Paul Joe Witt and Carmel Lacewell.

landfill at that location.

The group hired an attorney to check possible legal action that could be taken to prevent Mississippi County from locating in Scott County, but say they need more help.

Lindsay Hurley, first district judge of the Mississippi County Court who was present at the meeting, told the landowners that Mississippi County has so much money tied up in the landfill it can't afford to back out.

Hurley said that two years ago Mississippi County and Scott County made an agreement to jointly operate a landfill but, after James Patrick of St. Louis began his private practice, Mississippi County began looking for a place of its own.

"Patrick talked to us about joining him, but we weren't interested," Hurley said.

Second District Judge Louie Hirschowitz said he doesn't want Mississippi and Scott counties to operate a landfill together because he feels like they would not be able to get along.

Judge Lankford told the group he is not satisfied with the landfill the Scott County Court has purchased. "If I had it to do over, I would look for rolling land," he said.

Pros. Atty. Jim Moore has asked Atty. Gen. John Danforth for an opinion on whether a third class county can own land and operate a landfill in an adjoining county, and if a third class county can exclude an adjoining county from owning and operating a landfill through a county plan or through zoning.

The opposition group has told the County Court it thinks Mississippi county should stay in its own county but the Mississippi County Court claims its water table is so high that there is no suitable location for a landfill within the county.

The protest group vowed to continue the fight to prevent its establishment.

The Tigers out scored South Pemiscot 22- 18 to take a 30- 28 halftime lead. South Pemiscot came back in the third frame with a 19- 15 period and out scored their opponents 16- 14 in the final frame to take the win.

David Madden was high point man with 25 points. Allen Becker added 15 points for the Bulldogs of South Pemiscot. Richard Pitts scored 17 points for Caruthersville and Gary Walton scored 15 points while Paul Palmer, was scoring 11 points, and Ben Cantrell added 10 points.

Indians-Pirates collide

BERNIE-- Puxico and Parma square off in what may be a preview of the class A regional finals next February as the two powers collide for the championship of the Bernie Invitational tournament tonight at 8:30.

Coach Pete Townsend's top seeded Indians battled past a rugged Gideon Bulldog quintet, 62- 50 and Parma edged out their New Madrid county neighbors-- Risco Tigers-- 66- 62 to move into the title bout.

Balance was the key to the Puxico victory, as five players scored in double figures for the pre- tourney favorites.

The Indians took a 14- 12 lead in the first quarter and held off the big rugged Bulldogs with a full court pressure defense and finally pulled away in the fourth period with a 22- 13 advantage.

Will Smith and Mike Reed scored 13 points each in pacing the PHS offense, which included 10 point totals by Red Smith, Jim Davis and Jerry Caldwell. Gideon was led by Curtis Coleman's 18 points. Gary Pyland added 14 and Joe Murphy 12 to round out the GHS double figure scoring.

Parma coach Mark Rascher almost turned sure victory into a defeat Thursday night when he unloaded his bench with about a minute and a half left in the game, holding a 13 point lead, and had to hustle his starters back into the contest as the pressure Risco defense provided the capacity crowd with some last second excitement.

Risco closed within four points and has a couple of chances to get even closer, but turned the ball over themselves.

Parma opened up an 18- 14 lead in the first and added five points to that lead through the next two quarters before Risco finally ran the Pirates down and began to chip away at their 15 point lead build early in the final quarter.

Steve Gibson, the Pirates only underclassmen among the starters, wheeled and dealed for 22 points and 15 rebounds to pace Parma's march into the title bout. Rufus Barnes scored 18 and Rolly Perkins, and J. W. Gaines added 10 each for PHS.

Risco was paced by Andy Smelser with 19. Steve Landers had 18 and Dennis Patterson 14.

The Golden Tigers and Gideon square off in the consolation game at 7 p.m. tonight.

Mac begins eighth season

Friday night's tipoff at 8 p.m., initiates the eighth season for Sikeston high school's head basketball coach, N. P. McDaniel. In his seven years as the SHS leader, coach Mac has guided his roundball team to 89 wins in 145 starts and three regional championships, while coaching three all- state basketball players. Monday morning quarterbacks (if they have those in basketball), have criticized the coach for not getting "results," yet knowledgeable sports men in southeast Missouri have long recognized the friendly man with the white crew cut as one of the top coaches around. Few schools have equalled Sikeston's three regional wins and none have played a schedule near equal that which confronts the Bulldogs year after year.

The Blytheville Chickasaws tip off the upcoming list of fine teams opposing the Bulldogs. Compiling a record of 31-2 and finishing second in Arkansas's state 3-A playoffs, the Chicks were indeed a rugged opponent for any team last season, and they promise to continue that tradition in the campaign upcoming. Missing from last season's team is a 6- foot- 7 All- American, but the Chicks still feature good size across the front line. Because 6- foot- 4 Roger Tillman will miss the contest with a slight ankle injury, the home team will have just one man over six feet tall, playing against a team that has players 6- foot- 4, 6- foot- 2, 6- foot- 2, 6- foot- 1 and 5- foot- 10 in height. So, despite an opening 60-53 defeat at the hands of Manila, Arkansas, Blytheville will enjoy a big advantage of height their game at SHS's mini- dome.

The Bulldogs will counter height with speed, quickness, a hopefully good defense, and four of the district's finest shooters. Statements like the former one will put a great pressure on Sikeston's shooters, but three of them proved themselves last year. Sikeston's starting lineup will look like this:

ROY BOWMAN will handle one forward slot. With the absence of Tillman, Roy will have to lead the Sikeston assault on the boards, despite standing only 6- foot- 1. The senior is an outstanding defensive player -- best on the team -- above average outside shot (he hit 45 per cent last season), and an all- around fine athlete, as shown by his selection to the All- Conference football team.

The other forward spot should be held by RONALD MARKS. This is the third year of starting him. Probably the best offensive player on the team, Marks is the leading returning scorer from last year's regional champs with a 13.4 average. The slim six- footer is an outstanding leaper, but actually not bulky enough to mix it up on the boards. Ron will probably control the floor game for SHS, as he has in the past.

MARK COUCH is one of the districts finest outside shots. The 5- foot- 11 senior hit 81 percent of his free throws last year and shot 51 percent from the floor, but averaged less than eight points per game because of a reluctance to shoot. Hopefully he will have gained maturity and confidence his shot, since his offense will be critical if Sikeston is to stay in games with the taller teams.

VANGILEE WEST is the fourth assured starter. Grade problems kept this impressively quick 5- foot- 9 junior out of action last year, but in practices he has been a pleasant surprise.

The fifth spot is up for grabs going into the game. Several players have a good shot at it. The biggest, 6- foot- 3 Howard Tate, is lacking on experience and consistency of effort, but possesses the talent and the ability to do the job. 6- foot- 1 Russ Wissman probably has the inside track on the spot right now. The left- handed junior is a better shot than Tate, but weaker on defense and not quite as quick.

Sikeston's sixth man at guard will be 5- foot- 11 senior Donnie Taylor. He is just an adequate offensive ballplayer, but very good on defense. He will be joined as a top reserve by a newcomer to the team, 6- foot junior James Bryant.

It is the first time the two schools have met on the court, although they have fought it out on the gridiron. The Tartan floor of the SHS fieldhouse should be the scene of a contest between size and strength against quickness and finess. The fans should enjoy it.

Braves lose

ORAN — The host OHS Eagles upset the Scott Central Braves 68-65 and the Matthews Pirates raced past the Delta Bobcats 70-53 here Thursday night in the semifinals of the OHS invitational tournament.

In the opening game of the night the Oran Eagles advanced to the semi-finals Friday night of the losers bracker by downing the Braves. It was the second loss for SCCHS in the tournament marking the second time the Braves were favored and lost.

The Braves started fast against the Eagles. Coach Joe Scott had a couple of boys out with injuries and his outlook at the beginning of the game was very bleek. Scott Central led after the first period, 14-11, and looked as though they were going to run away with the game.

Oran, with Steve Atchison working hard both offensively and defensively brought the Eagles from the three point deficit into a 33-29 halftime lead.

The third period belonged to the Eagles as Oran started beating the Braves down court for the easy layup. The Braves looked tired and the Eagles took advantage of the defensive lapse.

Scott Central put on a press in the last period in an effort saved the game but Oran handled the ball very well and time ran out before the Braves could catch up.

It was the first win for the Eagles this season after three losses. "It was good to get that first win", said a happy Joe Scott, Oran coach.

In the second game of the night the Pirates of Matthew sputtered through the first period as the team was obvious nervous and rusty from a week layoff but Ricky Parker found the range in the second period and the rest of the Pirates began to find the hoop and an outmanned Delta Bobcat five was done for the night.

Matthews was very cold in the opening minutes of the first period as Delta jumped out to a six point advantage but after Parker began to hit the lead quickly slimmed down. By the time the second quarter had come to a close the Pirates enjoyed a comfortable 34-25 lead.

Carson Kelly had an outstanding night for the Delta Bobcats as the flashy senior pumped in 22 points to keep the Bobcats respectable.

Ricky Parker ended the game with 16 points, Jimmy Harden 17, and Armond Porter 15.

Friday nights action sees Oran playing the Bell City Cubs in the loser's bracket at 7:00 and Kelly taking on East Prairie in the winners circle at 8:30. Scoring:

Ann Landers

Fake back injuries have caused many drivers to lose insurance

Dear Ann Landers: When I first started to read your column I was sure you made up those letters. I couldn't believe people did those things. A straight reporting job out of Wellfleet, Mass., which I read today has convinced me that truth is indeed stranger than fiction.

It seems a socialite movie star was married in Cape Cod to the granddaughter of a famous dress designer. She was barefooted. He wore 15- year-old white buckskin shoes. His collie, Murray, was the best man. The couple announced before the wedding that they are expecting a baby.

What's going on? Or am I crazy?--- Mystified In Massachusetts

Dear Mys: More people are abandoning tradition and doing their own thing.

One of the duties of the best man is to hand the bride's wedding ring to the groom. I wonder how Murray managed it. It appears that a dog is not only man's best friend, but on occasion can be friend's best man.

Dear Ann Landers: I picked my wife's brother up last night to drive him to a lodge meeting. We've been buddies since we played on the high school basketball team together. When he noticed a big dent in the rear of my car he asked what happened. I told him some creep hit me from behind and I haven't found time to take the car into the shop. His next question was, "Are you going to sue the guy for a back injury?"

I told him I had my seatbelt on and luckily I wasn't hurt. He gave me a look of disgust and muttered, "You're an idiot. With a smashed rear end like that you could claim a back injury and collect plenty. Nobody can prove your back wasn't hurt if you say you've got terrible pain."

I have no intention of following his advice because I don't believe in those rinky-dinks but I'd like to know if what he says is true. Wouldn't an injury show up on an X-ray? How about it?--- Straight And Narrow

Dear S & N: Torn ligaments and pulled muscles don't show up on X- rays, but even so, it's not easy to fool the insurance company's examining physicians. They know every trick in the book, having witnessed them all a few hundred times. An astute doctor can tell a great deal by the way a person walks, stands, sits in a chair and gets up from a chair. Once the "patient" is tagged as a claim- faker he has a very difficult time getting any more coverage and that's a bad spot to be in.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in my middle twenties, and live several hundred miles away from my family. I am not married and am very pregnant. I won't explain here why it isn't feasible for my beloved to marry me at this time but we hope to make it legal next year.

My question is this: My mother plans to visit me in three weeks. I will be in my eighth month. Would it be kinder to write and tell her before she arrives (I'm sure it will be very upsetting), or should I wait and let her see for herself?--- Happy But Not Content

Dear H. But Not C.: By all means prepare your mother in advance--- by letter. It will be easier for her to READ the news than to see it.

Confidential to Quo Vadis: Choose your own direction. How will he take it? The same way any other humble, self-effacing egomaniac would react to being dumped.

Brenda Essary and Gene Newman exchange vows

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Newman

MATTHEWS— Brenda Essary and Gene Newman were united in marriage in a candelight ceremony on Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Kewanee United Methodist Church. The double- ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl G. Statler.

Gary Clark sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer", accompanied by Miss Jan Helms at the organ.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Essary of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Newman Sr. of Sikeston Route Three.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white voile and Cluny lace. The gown was designed with a pinafore bodice on Cluny lace and had a high neckline with lace collar and lantern sleeves capped with lace and ending with deep lace cuffs and tiny bridal buttons.

A self- fabric sash encircled the high- rise waist, with a demi- bell skirt adorned with bands of lace encircling the lower portion of the skirt.

Her double chapel- length veil was bordered with lace with a blusher veil attached and was held in place by a bandeau cap of matching lace topped with self- fabric bow. She carried a bouquet of fall flowers and, as she was escorted down the aisle, she presented her mother a long-stemmed rose.

Maid of honor was Phyllis Clayton of Sikeston whose gown of brown polyester was accented with egg shell colored lace.

Bridesmaid was Doris Shelby of Colorado, sister of the bride. Her dress was of yellow crepe. Both carried small bouquets of fall flowers.

Bill Boyd of New Madrid served the groom as best man. Groomsman was Eddie Newman of Sikeston, cousin of the groom.

As the bride and groom left the church, the bride presented the groom's mother a long- stemmed rose.

Sheila Boyd of New Madrid presided at the guestbook.

George T. Essary, brother of the bride, and Davis A. Winters of Kewanee served as ushers and candlelighters.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Newman are making their home in Kewanee.

Rowe head says Bluff plant to be main thrust of growth

POPLAR BLUFF— "The Poplar Bluff plant of Rowe Furniture Corp. without question, is the most modern upholstery furniture manufacturing plant in the nation and might well become the largest in the nation under one roof," Gerald M. Birnbach, Rowe president, told more than 100 Chamber of Commerce members at the organization's noon luncheon meeting Tuesday at Holiday Inn.

The Poplar Bluff facility will be the main thrust of our future growth," added the furniture company president who was on hand to serve the special $3 million bond issue passed by Poplar Bluff voters by a 90 per cent majority.

Birnbach said he expected 1973 sales to exceed $34 million.

In discussing the recent labor dispute in which the National Labor Relations Board ruled twice in favor of the company, Birnbach said, "We're determined to run our own business. We're not sure why they went on strike. They've tried to organize us before and they'll try again but we think we're doing the right thing for our people."

City Manager David Pence introduced the Poplar Bluff Industries and Chamber of Commerce Advisory Board composed of Bob Wolpers, Harlo Dunn, Earl Baumgardner and Ben Bidewell.

Officials of the Rowe company introduced by Birnbach were Norman Waxman, senior vice president; G. O. Woodlief, vice president of manufacturing; Al Jones, executive vice president and general manager of the Salem frame and Himmelberger-Harrison branches; Allan J. Bresnick, director of fabric administration and advertising, and Harvey Ptashek, director of sales administration.

Birnbach announced that effective Jan. 1, John Sisson will be assistant vice president for manufacturing and general manager of the Poplar Bluff facility and B. K. Webster will be assistant vice president of administration for the Poplar Bluff facility.

The company was founded in 1946 by Donald E. Rowe Sr., who was the general manager of the largest upholstered producer at that time. Rowe, by training was a methods and systems engineer, and the systems that were initiated by Rowe are still in use today.

Today Rowe manufactures a complete line of popular priced furniture which encompasses more than 100 individual styles of traditional, contemporary, Spanish, early American and sleeper sofas.

According to Birnbach, the company is probably the leading manufacturer in the country today.

Birnbach said that faith in the city by company officials was extremely well founded, as Poplar Bluff, the people, the Chamber of Commerce and the local government, has evidenced support and cooperation that Rowe is thankful for.

Gasless Sundays may help fill pews

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasless Sundays aren't expected to hurt those spiritual refueling stations, the churches. In fact, some religious leaders say it could boost attendance by keeping people on the hometown scene.

"It might be a blessing in disguise," said the Rev. Dr. W. Sterling Carey, president of the National Council of Churches, noting that the ban on Sunday gasoline sales could replace weekend trips with church-going.

"People may find again their local church, get to know their neighbors and have time to search again for the values which once made this nation one of hope and trust," he added.

However, the Rev. Dean M. Kelley, an inter-church specialist on relations with government, suggested people may simply apply an old biblical tip of Moses and obtain their travel fuel a day early.

"Presumably like the ancient children of Israel, they'll stock up on manna the day before," he says, recalling how "manna" fell in the wilderness each day except the sabbath, for which it was gathered the previous day.

In any case, the Sunday closing of filling stations isn't regarded as a hindrance to getting to worship services, even though participants largely get there by car these days.

"It obviously won't inhibit going to church, and it may help because people won't be so likely to be driving out of town," said Frank White, director of the interdenominational corporation information center.

The nation's major churches for several years have been urging a simpler life style to moderate consumption of dwindling natural resources. Many local churches across the country also are taking steps to cut their own uses of energy.

Maryland's Episcopal bishop David Leighton, of Baltimore, asked congregations to keep thermostats down to a minimum and recommended holding meetings in smaller quarters requiring less heat. He also suggested inter-faith sharing of facilities.

A check of Houston, Tex., churches by Louis Moore, religion editor of the Houston Chronicle, showed that many churches have decided to lower thermostats to 68 degrees and keep unecessary lights off.

The Rev. Robert Ball, of Houston's Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church, says it already had a policy of encouraging members to use car pools because of limited parking facilities.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Allen, of Houston's downtown First Methodist Church, said there is a possibility of scheduling Friday noon services for members who work downtown but live in the suburbs.

Many Catholic churches hold services on Saturday for people that can't make it on Sunday.

Msgr. John Lenihan, of Christ the King Roman Catholic Church in Jacksonville, Fla., said that parish may schedule all Masses on Saturday in case the energy pinch banned Sunday driving.

However, President Nixon, in his initial energy-conservation message, said there will be no ban on Sunday driving, such as has been imposed in some European countries.

Ambassadors to be county singing guests

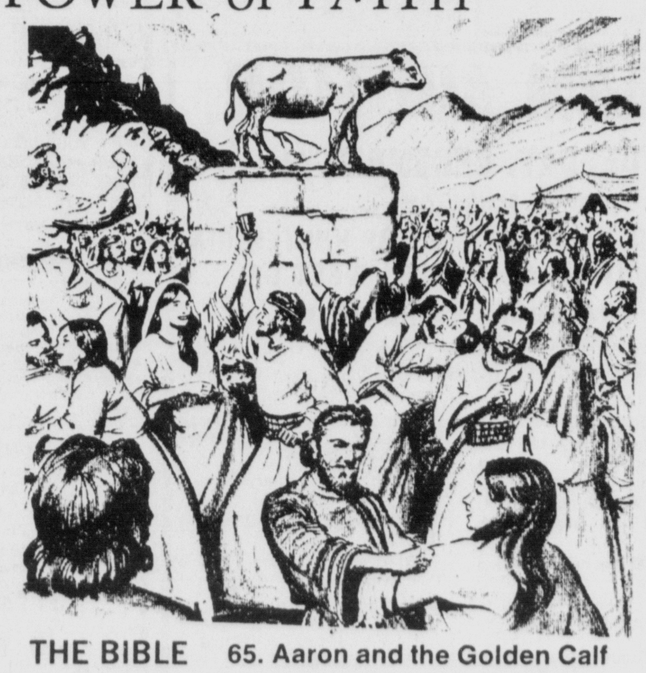
The program will begin at 2 p.m. and will include other local area singing groups.

The POWER of FAITH



THE BIBLE 65. Aaron and the Golden Calf

When the children of Israel saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, they gathered together to ask Aaron to make them gods, for they did not know what had become of Moses.

"And Aaron said unto them, Break ott the guiden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me. And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron."

Exodus 32:2-3.

Aaron then melted the golden earrings in the fire, and from the molten gold he fashioned the people a golden calf. Aaron next built an altar before the graven image and proclaimed the next day a feast day.

Meanwhile, the Lord informed Moses that the people had quickly turned aside from His commandments, and He ordered Moses to leave the mount. Moses came down from the mount carrying the two stone tablets upon which God's commandments had been written.

"And the tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables."

Exodus 32:16.

The children of Israel would soon have visited upon them God's wrath for breaking the second commandment.

Upper Room honors chaplains

Dr. Wilson O. Weldon, editor of The Upper Room, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., presents the 25th Upper Room Citation to Maj. Gen. Roy M. Terry, chief of chaplains of the U. S. Air Force; Maj. Gen. Gerhardt W. Hyatt, chief of chaplains of the U. S. Army; and Rear Adm. Francis L. Garrett, chief of chaplains of the U. S. Navy.

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR DECEMBER 2, 1973

Scripture: John 1:6-13; 17 20:30-31; 21:24-25

Why The Gospel Of John?

For the next three months these lessons will concern the one who says to men, "I and the Father are One" and "I am the way, and the truth and the life."

John also states that "These are written that you may have life in His name." These lessons will elaborate on this statement.

One of the major objectives of John's book is to turn the unbeliever to one whose faith becomes strong enough to accept the life Christ promised.

Discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls in recent years has stimulated more interest in John, since there have been similarities noted in the two writings.

It is appropriate that we start this series with a question concerning John. This is a skeptical age, a time when new questions are regularly encountered.

Faith is good business to some persons. To others it is a concept or a belief that makes it possible for us to grow stronger as we grow older.

And to others faith is something that we accept much as we adopt a habit.

John wanted to assure us the eternal life that Paul discussed recently. In his message, John stressed the need for us to accept and to believe that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God."

John's Gospel was written in the early years of the 2nd Century. Its sources remain uncertain. The Interpreter's Commentary notes that "the gospel encourages an ever-deepening search for meaning."

All of the Gospels have the goal of developing our faith and belief. As Dr. Charles Laymon points out they continually tell us to "Believe, accept, respond." We are to grow from "babes in Christ" to maturity.

John has the ability to see things with a double vision. One is the earthly phase, while the other is the eternal reality. He had the difficult assignment of changing the thinking habits of persons from the Hellenistic modes to the Christian views.

In John we study theological interpretations. In his words we find guidelines for all who believe in Christ. The gospel is universal in scope.

John announces a "happening," a proclamation, a conversion, a new-birth. And as we accept John's offer we experience a change in our lives, and in our relationships with all others.

It is difficult for most of us to discuss religion. It is more difficult to discuss death and eternity.

Too many view eternal life solely as life after death. Actually, eternal life starts on earth and this situation should encourage us to listen carefully to what John says.

John wrote that his account was "selective". In this way, he might be compared to today's reporters and commentators. They, too, attempt to select the facts that will have lasting importance.

He also wrote to prove that Jesus is the Christ. Belief in Christ is the central issue of his day and ours as well. John wanted all the people to share their lives with Christ.

Much of what is stressed in today's lesson has been taught to us from our early childhood when we attended Sunday School. John knew, as teachers know today, that good points cannot be overstressed.

Throughout John we will learn about "signs" and "sayings." The first group refers to deeds or things that have an allegorical significance. In his "sayings" John takes a central topic and discusses its fully.

In preparing for the lessons ahead, we need to review John's portrayal of Christ as pre-existent with God. We need to visualize the quality of the life of Christ as promised by John.

Jesus, then, offers all the key to a fuller understanding of life both here and in eternity.

Chaplains honored for world service

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— The 25th annual Upper Room Citation Award was presented recently to the chiefs of chaplains of the U. S. armed services, on behalf of all chaplains, both military and civilian, at a special dinner at Sheraton- Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. accepting the award for the chaplains around the world— were: Maj. Gen. Roy M. Terry, chief of chaplains of the Air Force, Maj. Gen. Gerhardt W. Hyatt, chief of chaplains of the Army; and Rear Adm. Francis L. Garrett, chief of chaplains of the Navy.

Dr. Wilson O. Weldon, world editor of The Upper Room said, in making the presentations, "these citations are presented in recognition of the devotion and leadership of the worldwide ministry of all chaplains who serve in times of war and peace, faithfully giving their noblest in ministering to human needs."

Each of the chiefs of chaplains, in accepting the award, paid high tribute to The Upper Room daily devotional guide for the part it has had in their ministry.

Chaplain Terry, decrying the lack of real communication said he would declare a citation to The Upper Room for its ministry of the printed word!

Chaplain Garrett said that The Upper Room is one of the most significant ministries of the church and Chaplain Hyatt reminded us that "this is a day in which our faith is being tested," and praised The Upper Room for its part in the total ministry of the church.

Vocal concert set for Sunday morning

PORTAGEVILLE-- Roger Bankson, acclaimed as one of the nation's leading tenor soloists will appear in vocal concert at 10:45 a.m. Sunday in Trinity Baptist Church.

Bankson, who started singing at the age of 8 and has appeared all over America and in Canada and Mexico, started singing in quartets while attending Bible college in 1960 in California with a group known as the Songfellows.

He also has sung with the Golden State Quartet, the Search Lighters quartet he organized in 1965 and, most recently, with the Gospel Lads of the Revival Fires ministries of Joplin, with whom he appeared regularly on television for about a year.

He has been hailed by some experts as the best Irish tenor of his day.

What's the law?

The case of the imcompetent juror

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Roger fought a lengthy court battle with Harold that was full of suspense and expense. After the jury brought in a verdict against him, however, Roger found that it was also full of pretense. One of the jurors, he learned, a sleazy- eyed character, had been previously convicted of a felony. And under state law felons were not competent to sit as jurors.

"I insist upon a new trial," insisted Roger of the judge. "Jurors are supposed to have the courage of their convictions and not a record of convictions. With criminals on the panel, the verdict, obviously, is suspect."

"If Roger didn't like the looks of his sleazy- eyed juror," retorted Harold, "he should have checked him out before the trial began. As far as I was concerned, he looked just fine. In fact, after the verdict came in, he looked like a real doll."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Roger a new trial because of the presence of the incompetent juror?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that once the trial was over, it was too late for Roger to complain. While convicted felons may not be competent to act as jurors, noted the judge, by not seeking to discover the presence of a felon while picking the jury, Roger is deemed to have waived any objection he might have had with regard thereto.

(Based upon a 1973 Wyoming Supreme Court Decision)

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

Count it all joy, my brethren, when you meet various trials. (James 1:2)

PRAYER: Lord, help us to rejoice in all of live's experiences, and to celebrate life in its wholeness. In the spirit of the Master, who taught us the Prayer Perfect: "Our Father who art in heaven...Amen."

Starfish, also called sea stars, feed upon mollusks, especially oysters, clams and mussels and are occasionally removed as pests from oyster beds by means of large mops. A starfish is able to force open mollusk shells by sustained suction and then envelops the soft mollusk body with its stomach, which is extruded through its mouth, The World Almanac says. Starfish are able to regenerate missing parts.

Senators seek warning system

KENNETT — Both of Missouri's U.S. senators have joined efforts to secure an improved storm warning system for the Bootheel and Southeast Missouri.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton was advised of the efforts Monday and by Tuesday morning one of the Senator's staff members, Jack Lewis, had conferred with the National Weather Service offices in St. Louis and Memphis and had checked with television stations in Memphis to determine what was needed to improve communications.

The office of Sen. Stuart Symington was also alerted Monday to the campaign, and his administrative assistant Stanley R. Fike also began compiling information on the present system and what is required to improve it. In Symington's absence (he underwent a minor operation Monday in Washington), Fike assigned another staff member, James Davidson, to the project.

Lewis said that the information he had compiled thus far "raises a very serious question about the effectiveness of the weather alert system." Lewis talked several times Tuesday with William Waldheuser, supervising forecaster of the St. Louis National Weather Service office.

Waldheuser suggested the installation of a special NAWAS (National Warning System) line connecting National Weather Services offices in St. Louis and Memphis. This would enable the St. Louis office, which has the responsibility for issuing all severe storm warnings in Missouri, to notify immediately the Memphis office of an approaching storm in Southeast Missouri. Since the Memphis office has immediate access to air time on all three Memphis commercial television stations, the warning could be relayed almost immediately to this area.

A somewhat more complicated problem exists in notifying the Paducah, Ky., television station of an approaching severe storm in Southeast Missouri since the station receives its weather advisory news from the Louisville office of the National Weather Service.

The campaign was inaugurated following the deaths of two Dunklin Countians Saturday night from a tornado that went unreported — as far as Bootheel residents were concerned — by Memphis television stations.

One factor which may assist in securing an improved warning system for Southeast Missouri is the membership of Eagleton on the Senate Appropriations Committee. The state's junior senator serves as a member of an appropriations subcommittee, which considers appropriations requests from the National Weather Service.

A member of Eagleton's staff said hearings may be held on the NWS appropriations, at which time it would be possible to determine what improvements were being proposed for improved storm warning systems in Southeast Missouri.

Christmas activities set

CHAFFEE — DeWayne Bryant, Jaycee Christmas coordinator, has announced that the 1973 Christmas activities have been finalized.

On Dec. 8, at 1:30 p.m., the "Little Mr. and Miss Christmas" contest will be held downtown at Main and Yoakum. In case of bad weather, the contest will be held at the high school gymnasium at the same time.

The age limits for the contest are 2 through 6 years old. No dress requirement will be made, leaving it entirely up to the individual. Contestants will be limited to Chaffee and the immediate area. Entry blanks printed in the Chaffee Signal, should be filled out and returned to DeWayne Bryant, Route Two, Box 114 B, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

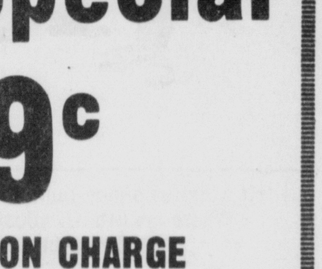
The "Little Mr. and Miss Christmas" winners will ride in the Christmas parade on Dec. 15 as parade marshals. Savings bonds will also be awarded to the two winners.

The Christmas parade will begin at 2 p.m. at Harmon Field. All floats entering the parade should be at the field by 1 p.m. for judging. Cash prizes offered this year for the float contest are as follows: First place — $75; second place — $50; third place, $25. Floats entering the parade and contest may use any theme that centers around or about Christmas. The Jaycees and Chamber of Commerce urge all local organizations and individuals to participate in the Christmas Parade. Several area bands will participate in the Christmas parade.

The house decorating contest announced earlier has been cancelled due to the energy crisis. The local Jaycee chapter urges all citizens in the area to comply with energy recommendations and requests.

This year the Jaycee Christmas party for grade school students in Chaffee will be held at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the high school gymnasium. Christmas films will be shown, candy given out, along with a visit from Santa Claus himself.

Anyone having questions concerning the Christmas activities should contact DeWayne Bryant, Richard Hodge or Gary Minor.



It is said that when Alexander the Great offered anything he wished to the Greek philosopher Diogenes, Diogenes asked him to move out of his light.

As fund drive ends, Malden short of goal

MALDEN-- The Malden United Fund drive is drawing to a close and it appears the goal of $15,000 will not be reached.

The board of directors for the United Fund has named some of the local recipients who will be directly affected by the success of the drive.

Included are: All scout troops: Both Boy and Girl Scout troops use the Scout Hut which must be maintained by monies received through the United Fund, including side repair and maintenance and utility bills. A portion of United Fund monies also are used for upkeep of summer camps for the 16 scout troops of Malden to use as they desire.

Locating expenses for a doctor: An attempt is being made by the United Fund board to secure a doctor for Malden. In the event a doctor is located and will visit Malden, the money will be used to pay his living expenses while he is in the city.

Ministerial Alliance: Recent requests for financial assistance from the Ministerial Alliance has increased its role in helping persons in need.

Malden Historical Museum: Malden is the only city of this size in the area which has a museum. The board would like to keep and enlarge the museum.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas"...
CHARLIE BROWN: THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS IN A NUTSHELL

He's awkward at parties. He sometimes stands like a stick in the corner, laughs before the joke is finished or spills his ice cream. His pals call him hopeless, wishy-washy, blockhead and failure- face. But without Charlie Brown, the rest of Charles M. Schulz's little Peanuts would miss a lot of points.

To whom else could they turn for that best of all cures for disillusionment-- "a chocolate cream and a friendly pat on the back"-- free? Self- appointed Peanut psychiatrist Lucy might advise the cream, but she'd charge her usual five- cent fee for the idea-- and she's not known for many pats on the back that don't send a Peanut sprawling. And who but Charlie Brown would make a project of figuring out for the clan what things are all about-- really important things like Christmas?

With help from thumb- sucking philosopher Linus, Charlie discovers the real meaning of Christmas for the other Peanuts on "A Charlie Brown Christmas," animated Peabody and Emmy award- winning special to be rebroadcast Thursday, Dec. 6 (8:00- 8:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Linus is as deep a thinker as Charlie Brown, but he works out his little philosophies more privately and has come to the conclusion that there are certain topics you should rarely discuss in public, even Peanut public: politics (as proved by his campaign speeches) and special things you believe in, like a Great Pumpkin.

Charlie Brown, on the other hand, is never satisfied until he has shared with the clan any answer he may have found. The pint- sized roundhead is also willing to share his beliefs, his hopes and his opinion of himself.

His complete candor motivates him to patter up to Lucy's home-made psychiatry stand, plunk down five cents and bare his soul.

"I want people to say, 'You know, that Charlie Brown is a great guy,' " he once told Lucy during an "analysis" session. "I want to be a special person. I want to be needed."

When poor Charlie gets uptight about the commercialism of the yuletide season on "A Charlie Brown Christmas," he pays his fee and tells Lucy that he feels "sort of let down."

As the other Peanuts get entangled in the season's trimmings, Charlie digs through the wrappings for the real gift of Christmas. And when he realizes what all the decorating, card- sending and gift- giving really symbolize, he's still not completely happy until he has communicated the message to the rest of the Peanut world.

He may be shy, bumbling, introspective, and an example of a variety of many little failings that make man human, but Charlie Brown is also the most involved Peanut.
